Anglo-American Areas of Germany To Attain Many of 1937-38 Levels

Berlin, July 29 (AP).—A crop production plan for the combined Anglo-American zones of Germany for 1947-48 which provides for an 8-per-cent increase in acreage devoted to principal food crops, notably bread grains, was announced today.

The plan, drafted by the German executive committee for food and agriculture and approved by the U. S. and British military governments, disclosed that in many commodities cultivated acreage will have reached or exceeded the 1937-38 planted acreages in the same territory.

It also showed a steady increase in plantings of foods for direct human consumption and a decrease in feed for livestock. This is in accordance with the policy of the military government to insist that as much food as possible should be grown for human needs on German soil during the present world shortage and less acreage devoted to pasture and livestock feeders, as herds are being reduced.

Fodder Crops Reduced

While the acreage for principal food crops is increased 8 per cent over the 1946-47 plantings, fodder crops are reduced a further 9 per cent.

The largest increase is in bread grains—boosted from 2,311,200 hectares in the current year to 2,412,800 hectares for the new crop year. (A hectare equals 2.47 acres). The projected bread grains acreage approximately equals that planted in the same territory in 1937-38.

The production plan calls for planting of 5,736,500 hectares to principal crops, 1,524,600 to fodder crops and the utilization of 4,449,600 hectares as meadows and pastures.

Big Four Plan Parley

By R. H. Shackford
United Press Reporter

The Big Four foreign ministers plan to go ahead with another conference on Germany in London this fall despite the open break between the east and west over the Marshall Plan for European rehabilitation, it was disclosed yesterday.

But few American officials—either here or in Germany—have more than the faintest hope that the ministers will come any closer to agreement on Germany than they did in Moscow last winter.

The State Department disclosed that plans for a preliminary deputies meeting in London in October are being made coincident with these other related developments:

1. The British have officially agreed to sit down with Americans in Washington to discuss ways of increasing German coal production. The British delegation will leave London this weekend and the talks will begin early next week. The talks have been delayed for a month during on-again off-again negotiations.

2. Kenneth S. Royall, the new

Tel Aviv Cafes, Movies Closed By Terrorists

Jerusalem, July 29 (AP).—Masked terrorists entered 10 movie houses and many cafes in the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv tonight and forced owners to close them in mourning for three members of the Irgun Zvai Leumi organization executed at dawn.

An Irgun spokesman called Hebrew newspapers tonight and repeated an earlier announcement that two British army sergeants, Nordin Paice, 19, and Clifford Martin, 21, were "being executed" in revenge for the hanging of the three terrorists.

The streets of Tel Aviv emptied quickly and were almost deserted by 10 p. m.

Chief Rabbi Isaac Herzog and Ben-Zion Uziel tonight urged the Irgunists, who kidnapped the sergeants as hostages, to release them at once.

Police discovered two large bombs near an army camp near Tel Aviv. They removed the fuses.

Two masked teen-agers were arrested in Tel Aviv as they were posting mourning notices calling on townspeople to pay their respects to the executed terrorists.

British authorities expected at any moment to hear that the two army sergeants had been killed.

Attempts by army and police forces to rescue the sergeants intensified as the hours passed. They admitted they had slim hope.

Reds Close Yugoslav Trade Deal

Moscow, July 29 (AP).—The Russians announced today that trade and credit arrangements had been concluded with Yugoslavia.

One accord provided Russian credit for Yugoslavia's purchase within the Soviet Union of equipment for metal, oil, chemical and timber industries.

In addition, a two-year agreement was signed for an exchange of goods under which Yugoslavia would send Russia lead, zinc, pyrites, tobacco, hemp, plywood and farm products. Russia would send Yugoslavia cotton, paper, cellulose, oil products, coal, coke, metals, automobiles, tractors, fertilizers and other equipment.

During the last few weeks an extensive trade agreement also has been signed with Czechoslovakia, economic help was extended to Albania and a trade agreement was reached with Hungary. A Polish trade group was in Moscow working out other agreements.

(All the European countries within the Soviet orbit rejected participation in the Marshall Plan aid in economic reconstruction of Europe.)

immediately after the meeting and had no comment.

Veto Held "Challenge to U. N."

Throughout the previous debates Gromyko had laid all the blame on the present Greek government and defended Yugoslavia, Albania and Bulgaria, the three Soviet satellites accused by a Balkan investigating commission of fomenting the frontier incidents.

Johnson called Gromyko's veto a challenge to the prestige and authority of the United Nations as guardian of the peace.

"By abuse of the veto power, one member has frustrated the will of the majority," Johnson told reporters. "As soon as practicable the United States will state in the council what the next step will be. We are not going to let the thing go by default."

This was the second Russian veto on a Balkan commission, the first coming September 20, 1946, when Gromyko turned down an American-sponsored resolution for investigating the commission. However, he abstained when the commission finally was set up last December.

Educators Condemn "Little Red Riding Hood"

London, July 29 (AP).—The Nursery Schools Association of Britain today condemned the child's tale, "Little Red Riding Hood," as cruel, deceptive and likely to create fear complexes among children.

Miss Joyce Cornish-Bowden, education secretary of the association, demanded that the story be banned to British youngsters because of its harmful influence.

Her action followed by a few weeks a Middlesex County ban on Punch and Judy shows on grounds they teach children to become wife-beaters.

2 Monks Sentenced To Die in Yugoslavia

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 29 (AP).—Four persons, two of them Franciscan monks, were sentenced by a Zagreb court yesterday to be shot as spies and remnants of the war-time Ustaah terrorist organization.

Four other monks were sentenced to terms of from seven to 15 years at forced labor, with loss of civil rights and rights of pension. One woman defendant was sentenced to nine years.

Soviet Rebuffs Marshall Plan Bid by France

Lake Success, July 29 (AP).—France made a new bid today for Russian cooperation in the Marshall Plan and the Soviet bloc answered with a sharp blast at her for injecting the American aid plan into a United Nations debate.

The main Soviet attack was delivered by L. I. Kaminsky, delegate from White Russia, who told the Economic and Social Council that the U. N. had been completely bypassed on the Marshall Plan and declared that, for that reason, the council had no right to discuss it.

French Delegate Georges Boris had gone into the Marshall program at length, but after the strenuous White Russian attack no other delegate referred to it during the three-hour session except Soviet Delegate Alexander P. Morozov.

Morozov made no mention of the new French bid for cooperation, declaring only that "the position of the Soviet Union with respect to the plan has been fully stated by the Soviet Foreign Minister, Mr. Molotov, at the Paris Conference." At that time Molotov refused to cooperate with Britain and France in plans to implement the Marshall program.

To Canvass Germany

Paris, July 29 (AP).—The European Economic Cooperation Committee decided today to send the four military zone commanders of Germany the same economic questionnaire which was sent to the 16 member nations last week.

Answers to the questionnaire are to form the working facts and figures for the cooperation committee, which is drawing up the European self-help economic program under the Marshall Plan. Replies are due in Paris by midnight August 3. The over-all report will be submitted to the U. S. government September 1.

Boettiger Leaves For Oslo on 'Business'

New York, July 29 (AP).—John Boettiger, Arizona publisher, and his wife, the former Anna Roosevelt, daughter of the late President, left by plane for Oslo today on what they described as a "purely business trip" to Norway.

Earlier today at Phoenix, the sale of Boettiger's interest in the Seattle Home News was announced. William F. Grettner, founder of the Home News, which was once known as the Buyers Guide, reacquired control of the paper in the transaction.

The Boettigers said they plan to devote their time to the Arizona Times which they founded at Phoenix.

Miner Kills Partner, Blasts Self to Death

Quincy, Calif., July 29 (AP).—Sheriff Melvin Scholer of Plumas County said today a gold miner shot his partner to death before the eyes of the partner's wife, then killed himself with a dynamite blast which sealed his body in an abandoned mine shaft.

Scholer related that Donald Walte, 35, Blarsten, was killed Saturday night as the climax of an argument with Fred Larsen, also 35, over some remarks by Walte that Larsen "didn't like." He said the two had drunk three bottles of wine.

been flying between Singapore and Jogjakarta since his discharge from military service; Mrs. Constantine, former Squadron Leader Hazelhurst, and four prominent Indonesians: Adi Soejitro, Hadji Soemarmo Wirjokoesomo, Dr. Abdulrachman Saleh and a man named Arifin.

Meanwhile, the Dutch extended their grip on the rich resources of Java and Sumatra. Some Republican sabotage was reported in oil fields; but the Dutch said otherwise the general situation was "developing favorably."

During a flight over southwest Java wide application of the Indonesian scorched earth policy was observed.

There was no sign of war or uneasiness in the agricultural areas of the island near Batavia and in the unoccupied western tip of Java. But down toward the sea, past Wijkkoops Bay, fires were seen everywhere. At least three rubber estates were ablaze. Two hundred fires were counted and many more remained uncounted.

A highly placed Dutch informant said that in the region southeast of Bandoeng several villages had been destroyed and many estates wrecked.

He said the demolitions in this area were being carried out by estate laborers under orders from the Central Federation of Indonesian Trade Unions.

Between 20 and 30 per cent of all the scorched earth activity is now being carried out by unions, informants say.

Refugees Barred at Palestine Vote Not to Leave Ship Alive

Port de Bouc, France, July 29 (AP).—A large number of the 4500 Jewish refugees brought back from Palestine aboard three British vessels have voted "not to go ashore alive," French officials said tonight.

The refugees aboard the Ocean Vigor were polled soon after the three ships reached this small port 30 miles west of Marseille today. The French indicated they considered the vote final for the group on the Ocean Vigor.

British authorities, however, protested the vote was not a representative one, contending it was made on a collective basis. Declaring each refugee should be allowed to express himself individually, one British official said: "In such a vote, we are sure more than half would decide to land."

Anchored beside the Ocean Vigor were the Runnymede Park and the Empire Rival. French doctors and nurses went aboard all three vessels during the day distributing milk to children and pregnant women, believed to number more than 100. The doctors reported no indications of contagious disease among the passengers on the Ocean Vigor.

The refugees were taken in custody 12 days ago by British naval men while attempting to reach Palestine aboard the Exodus of 1947 (the former Chesapeake Bay steamer President Warfield). They had sailed from Sete, France, July 10.

The French News Agency said two persons, a man and woman, each about 50 years old, had voluntarily landed from the Runnymede Park. One woman, ill with pneumonia, balked at landing. Conflicting figures were given as the number of ailing refugees. British officials said there were 22 seriously ill and no wounded aboard. Some Jewish representatives in Port de Bouc said 800 to 900 of the 4500 refugees were ill or wounded.

Co-Author Smith Called Saboteur Of FEPC Bill
Senator H. Alexander Smith (R-N. J.) was accused today of "strange behavior" that prevented the Ives-Chaves Fair Employment Practices bill from reaching the Senate floor before adjournment.

A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters and co-chairman of the National Council for a Permanent Fair Employment Practices Commission told a meeting of the council's policy committee that Senator Smith, in effect, sabotaged the bill, of which he was a co-author and co-sponsor. He said that in so doing, the New Jersey Senator had "betrayed... his party's 1944 pledge."

Randolph accused Senator Smith of abandoning the bill and its sponsors on two counts: first, by proposing an amendment that would exclude Southern States from penal provisions of the bill; second, by failing to support his sponsors Senators Ives and Senator James E. Murray (D., Minn.) on a motion to report the bill favorably to the Senate calendar.

Weather Helps Grain Price Flags; Corn Crop Rallies

By John W. Ball
Farmers' prices for their products, spearheaded by an all-time high for corn, went up 2 per cent from June 15 to July 15, the Department of Agriculture reported yesterday.

This is at the rate of 24 per cent a year.

At the same time prices of the things that farmers buy went up 1 per cent, reaching a point higher than last month, and 16 per cent above a year ago. These figures from the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, included interest and taxes.

Prices that farmers received at the farm for corn went up 16 cents a bushel during the month, to $2.01, a new record. The old record was $1.85 a year ago.

Meat animal prices averaged 1 1/2 per cent higher. Cotton at 35.88 cents a pound, was 5.05 cents above a year ago, and 1.81 cents above mid-June.

Most dairy products went up during the month as milk production began its normal seasonal decline. Truck crop prices dropped during the month.

On the other hand, the report shows the following increase in prices for goods the farmer buys:

Cotton Up $1.81,

Within the next few days Agriculture officials will announce their goals for next year's wheat crops.

Earlier plans to reduce the acreage will be abandoned, reports indicate, and a call for an acreage goal of between 70 and 72 million acres is now anticipated.

Until this year's corn crop prospects were darkened by a cool wet spring, the department tentatively planned a call for about 68 million.

Much of the wheat land has been under a heavy production strain since early in the war. Department officials had hoped the acreage would be reduced next year to give some of the overworked soil a rest.

There is danger, too, of dry weather hitting the Great Plains wheat area at any time. This could reduce destructive dust storms, such as played havoc there in the thirties.

Truman's Board Begins Work on U. S. Air Policy

President Truman's temporary Air Policy Board yesterday began its studies to assist in formulating a national policy on aviation.

The five board members, who met at the Commerce Department and were sworn in by Gerald Ryan, chief clerk, are:

Thomas M. Finletter, New York attorney, chairman; George P. Baker, Harvard transportation professor, vice chairman; Henry Ford 2d, Detroit; Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Denver Post, and Arthur D. White, New York financier.

A department official said the board began organizing the study ordered by Mr. Truman July 18 to aid the Nation in obtaining the "greatest possible benefits from aviation."

Mr. Truman announced the appointments while Senate and House conferees were adjusting differences on separate bills for an air policy study. Congress finally sent to the White House an act that would establish a 10-man congressional temporary Air Policy Board, having an objective stated in language almost identical with that used by the President. Mr. Truman has not yet signed the measure.

Youthful Killers Die For Double Murder

Lansing, Mich., July 29 (AP).—Two youthful carnival workers were hanged side by side on double gallows today for murdering a father and son in a holdup that netted them $450.

Cecil Tate, 22, Jacksonville, Fla., and George Guntow, 21, Battle Creek, Mich., hitchhiking tent show roustabouts, died together as they had requested.

Man Shot Dead in Court After Slashing His Wife

Oklahoma City, July 29 (AP).—J. J. Bourbonnais, 40, was shot and killed today in the small, crowded courtroom of Justice of the Peace Otto James after he slashed his wife with a razor blade during a peace bond hearing.

His wife, Ida Mae, 37, was cut across the abdomen and left hand, was reported by hospital attendants not to be in critical condition. Bourbonnais was shot by Constable Cecil Barker.

Worthington, Minn., 'Adopted' German City

Berlin, July 29 (AP).—Citizens of war-wrecked Crailsheim—approximately 6000—were notified today that they had been "adopted" by the city of Worthington, Minn., which would soon send them food and other supplies.

The "adoption" idea originated in Worthington, which wished to find such a town of its size to aid in the "cause of peace and freedom."

HER WEDDING GOWN—William H. Van Asperen, 73, shows his 94-year-old bride-to-be, Mrs. Ellen Anderson O'Brien Jones Davis, the gown he picked out for her to wear at their wedding Saturday in Detroit. She has been married four times and he three times. Their previous mates are dead. They said they will be married after 17 years of "platonic" life together to stop the tittering of neighbors.

D. C. Institutions Told to Buy Less Expensive Meats Only

The Commissioners yesterday asked the heads of District institutions not to buy any meat costing more than 45 cents a pound wholesale "until prices of meats are lower."

They made the request in an order effective August 1 to the heads of District hospitals, public welfare and correctional institutions. Child Day Care Centers will not be affected, they said.

The action was taken on the advice of Purchasing Officer Roland Brennan, who reported that some meat prices had gone up as much as 32 per cent since May.

Purchases of fresh fruits and vegetables, poultry and most dairy products will not be curtailed, he revealed.

Brennan said the order encouraged the use of meat "extenders" and substitutes—such as composition vegetable "cutlets" and soy bean flour—"like we did during the war."

Butter prices also are so high that hospitals will be forced to serve it only at breakfast, unless doctors or dietitians order it for other meals in special cases. Institutions and other than hospitals use oleomargarine, he explained.

Items expected to disappear from District menus because they cost more than the 45-cent maximum include: bacon (except on hospital diets), boneless beef, sweet pickled hams, beef liver, pork loins, corned beef and chipped beef.

Still available on the limited fare: Beef backs, loins, rounds, ribs, chucks; fresh or smoked pork shoulders; beef kidneys, lamb, mutton, salt pork, spareribs, pork sausage, veal, scrapple, bologna, frankfurters, pig knuckles and bacon ends.

Meat price boosts since May range from a fraction of a cent per pound for veal to 11 cents per pound for beef loins. Only items to show a slight decrease in price are frankfurters and bologna.

Martin Picks Committee of 19 For On-Spot European Survey

Taber (R., N. Y.) has delegated Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) to work with the latter group. This separate contingent will sail around September 1. Emphasis on Herter Group

But it was on the new Herter foreign economic committee named yesterday by Martin that the Republican leadership was laying most of its chips. The special group was authorized by the House after top House Republicans decided to take a look-see for themselves at Marshall Plan potentialities and our ability to meet them.

It was coincident with the formation of this group that House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.) started talking about "full-fledged partnership" for the House in foreign relations.

In a joint press conference with Herter, Eaton yesterday took much the same tack.

"What lies behind this," said Eaton, "is a very profound change in our Government setup. Heretofore, the Executive, under our Constitution, had complete responsibility for our foreign policy."

"Since the problems of the modern world are fundamentally economic rehabilitation, and since the United States is the only solvent world power, we have become the world leader. Under our Constitution, all of those laws (appropriations, finance) must originate in the House."

What the Herter committee reports to Congress thus will have an important bearing on the fate of the Marshall plan itself.

To the key special committee, Martin named 11 Republicans and eight Democrats representing some House committees. Besides Eaton and Herter, they were: living quarters in the White House, taking with him 25 bills to work on during the night.

Thomas A. Jenkins (R., Ohio), Charles A. Wolverton (R., N. J.), August H. Andresen (R., Minn.), Francis Case (R., S. Dak.), John C. Kunkel (R., Pa.), John M. Vorys

In all, some 250 bills await presidential action, though only about 100 have been delivered to the White House.

Mr. Truman was met at the airport by Admiral William D. Leahy, his Chief of Staff; Stanley Woodward, State Department chief of protocol; Assistant Press Secretary Eben Ayers; Presidential Adviser Clark Clifford and Maurice Latta, White House administrative officer. The President greeted them gravely and entered a White House automobile at once.

At Grandview, where he was accompanied to the airport by his wife, their daughter, Margaret, and his sister, Miss Mary Jane Truman.

His brother, J. Vivian Truman of Kansas City and several neighbors at Independence, Mo., followed the presidential limousine to bid him goodby. He shook hands with them, smiling a little, though the broad cheerful Truman smile was missing.

In addition to the aides who went to Missouri with him, the President brought back to Washington Mexican Ambassador Antonio de los Monteros, who had been sent by President Miguel Aleman to convey his condolences. Monteros did not attend the funeral, which was for the immediate family only.

After leaving his home at Independence, Mr. Truman drove to the little cottage at Grandview where his mother spent the last years of her long life. He remained there about 30 minutes and left with his sister, who is living there, at least for the time being. Mrs. Truman and their daughter are spending the summer at Independence.

Lincoln Papers Contain Many Petitions of Religious Groups Urging Him as Early as 1862 to Emancipate the Negroes

As early as 1862, Abraham Lincoln was being petitioned by religious groups to end slavery by emancipating the Negroes. Many documents on the issue are in the Robert Todd Lincoln collection, officially opened to public view by the Library of Congress last Saturday.

Among outstanding individual clergymen who consulted with or advised Lincoln during his administration was Henry Ward Beecher, an ardent Abolitionist, who petitioned Lincoln with telegrams and letters urging extreme measures.

More than a hundred petitions and resolutions from religious groups are contained in the Lincoln collection, library officials said.

Many Religious Groups
Among these is a communication from the Wisconsin Yearly Meeting of the Free Will Baptists in June, 1862, addressing "The prayer of 2500 Christians to our President" and urging immediate emancipation. "They now all agree that slavery is incompatible with the prosperity of the Nation, and a crime against God and man..."

dened with the heavyweight of our dear country's troubles; but when you were soon to receive the consolation of knowing how wonderfully God was about to favor your measures and lift up the hearts of loyal people."

Opposed Interference With Churches
The Lincoln collection also shows that Lincoln was opposed consistently to any official interference in the affairs of the churches.

When a minister who had refused to declare himself for the Union was arrested in St. Louis, Mo., Lincoln personally interviewed the man and then instructed Gen. Samuel R. Curtis:

"I must add that the U. S. Government must not, as by this order, undertake to run the churches."

Mrs. Ingalls Fined $2500 In Slave Case

San Diego, Calif., July 29 (AP).—Mrs. Alfred Wesley Ingalls, 62, was fined $2500 here today, and, as part of five years' probation, was ordered to pay Negro maid Dora Jones $6000 retribution for enslavement.

Federal Judge Jacob Weinberger suspended a three-year prison sentence because of the age and physical condition of the convicted woman, who wept from the time she entered the court until sentence was pronounced.

The fine was paid and Mrs. Ingalls, former Lynn and Boston, Mass., women's club leader, was free to leave the San Diego County jail. She had been confined there since July 19 when the same jury which convicted her was unable to agree in the case of her husband, former Massachusetts legislator.

The $6000 figure for Dora and the amount of the fine, Judge Weinberger said, were based on the probation officer's report of the Ingalls' financial condition.

Overall Trial Witness Qualifies Identification

Santa Ana, Calif., July 29 (AP).—An explosives magazine operator today identified time-bomb murder defendants George (Bud) Gollum and Beulah Louise Overall as purchasers of dynamite but on cross examination he qualified his identification.

The witness was Ben Smith, manager of the Trojan Powder Co. magazine at Highland, Calif. The 21-year-old premedical student and his fiancée, 18, are charged with beating to death her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter E. Overall, and then blowing up their yacht to hide the slayings.

Douglas Doing 'Fine' After Tonsillectomy

Portland, Oreg., July 29 (AP).—Justice William O. Douglas of the United States Supreme Court underwent a tonsillectomy today and a nurse at Physicians and Surgeons Hospital said "everything is just fine."

The Justice, vacationing at his summer home at Lostine in the Wallowa Mountains, said last night he had decided it was time to do something about his recurring throat infections.

Lincoln Held Election Pledges Binding and Vital to Republic sound out feeling in that significant boarder slave State which never did secede and which sent its many thousands of troops into both the Union and Confederate armies.

It would seem that he wrote out a speech for Kentuckians that his sense of timing told him not to deliver in its entirety as written. Aside from whatever parts of it he may have delivered, what we have now is Lincoln's own version of his personal theory as to the course of conduct rightly to be followed by a minority-elected President of a republic. In the first half of this speech he is dealing with the specific situation of his own hour a few weeks before he was to be inaugurated President, saying:

I am grateful for the opportunity (sic) your invitation affords me to appear before an audience of my native state. During the present winter it has been greatly pressed upon me by many patriotic citizens, Kentuckians among others, that I could in my position by a word, restore peace to the country. But what word? I have many words already before the public; and my position was given me on the faith of those words—Is the desired word to be confirmation of these; or must it be contradictory to them? If the former, it is useless repetition (sic); if the latter it is dishonorable and treacherous—

Again, it is urged as if the word must be spoken before the fourth of March—Why? Is the speaking the word (the word as crossed out) a "sine qua non" to the inauguration (sic)? Is there a Bell-man, a Breckinridge-man, or a Douglas man, who would tolerate his own candidate to make such terms, had he been elected? Who amongst you would not die by the proposition, that your candidate, being elected, should be inaugurated (sic), solely on the conditions of the constitution, and laws, or not at all—What Kentuckian, worthy of his birth place, would not do this? Gentlemen, I too, am a Kentuckian—

What then follows in this unique address is what will go into various manuals and textbooks dealing with what is termed popular government and republican institutions. You might go so far as to say this is a painfully wrought out annotation to the Gettysburg address and the Declaration of Independence. The familiar Lincoln script reads:

Nor is this a matter of mere personal honor. No man can be elected President without some opponents, as well as supporters; and if when elected, he cannot be installed, till he first appeases his enemies, by breaking his pledges, and and (sic) betraying his friends, this government, and all popular government, is already at an end—Demands for such surrender, once recognized, and yielded to, are without limit, as to nature, extent, or repetition—They break the only bond of Faith between public, and public servants; and they distinctly set the minority over the majority. Such Demands acquiesced in, would not merely be the ruin of a man, or a party; but as a precedent they would ruin the government itself—

I do not deny the possibility that the people may err in an election; but if they do the true (sic) is in the treachery of the person elected—

Message From Medill
The Midwest political tumult, the vehemence, and tension of the times, stand out from two communications sent to Lincoln by Joseph Medill, editor of the Chicago Press and Tribune. The first of these is a lead pencil memorandum covering two sides of a long narrow sheet of paper. It was enclosed in an envelope addressed to Abraham Lincoln, Freeport, Ill., with the word "Present" written large, the inference being that Medill was in the audience that was to hear Lincoln and Douglas debate and he was sending greetings and counsel as follows:

1. Friend Lincoln
Don't forget to draw a strong picture of the tenacity with which Dug clings to the decision that deprives the people of the right of self-government.

Make short work of his nigger equality charges by telling him that he don't believe what he says, that the people don't believe it & that it is humbug, slang and trash, uttered to deceive the ignorant and swindle foolish men out of their votes.

Remember, that you have good backing to day, and the more saucy you are the better. For once leave modesty aside. You are dealing with a bold, brazen, lying rascal & you must "fight the devil with fire." (pointing hand) Give Dug a rip on his forging a State platform on you. He spent an hour at Galena trying to roll the blame of Charley Lamphere. Let him consume his time chewing on the same cud.

Dug claimed that the Republican members of the Legislature of 54-55 voted for no more Slave states—resolutions, Trumbull told Dug in the Senate that that was not the action of the party in the state which was not formed until May 28, 1856 at Bloomington, & no state platform has taken that position, because it would be a mere offensive useless obstruction. Keep the Territories clear & there will never be any more Slave states, which is the same result, done by a proper method.

Hand Emphasized Paragraph

The other Medill communication is a two-page letter dated Chicago, September 10, 1856, at "Office Chicago Press & Tribune, 51 Clark Street" and at the left margin indicated "Confidential." Addressed to "A. Lincoln, Dr Sir," it reads:

I send you Douglas' late speech in Columbus, Ohio. You will see the new grounds he takes and the new coloring he gives to his old dogmas. I observe that you are invited to make speeches in Columbus & Cincinnati; you will draw big crowds and be well received. I know the Buckeyes well—being raised in that state.

Do not consider me presumptuous for offering a suggestion or two, viz: As you are not a candidate you can talk out as boldly as you please. There is no Egypt in Ohio. Any doctrine you can teach in Bloomington will take in Columbus, Cincinnati is nearly as radical as Chicago. They are willing to obey the fugitive law but want it repealed or modified and have so declared in their platform.

Don't act on the defensive, but pitch hot shot into the hulk of doughface and proslavery democracy. Rake down the swindling pretensions of Douglas that his Kansas-Nebraska bill guarantees or permits popular sovereignty. We have made a leading article on that subject in our today's paper.

If you will lay bare the fraud, delusion and shame of Squatter Sovereignty, you will do our cause in Ohio much service, as it will break the back of the Democratic pretense.

You made some strong points in your Chicago speech a year ago on the drift and tendency of the principles of the Democracy, and the duty of patriots to resist the aggressions of the oligarchy. Your peroration to the spirit of Liberty was capital.

Look over that speech again. Do not fail to get off some of your "anecdotes and bits"—no people relish such things more than the Buckeyes. I have only one word more of advice to offer, viz: Go in boldly. Strike straight from the shoulder—hit below the belt as well as above, and kick like thunder.

Yours in haste,
J. MEDILL.

(Sentence written along side of the letter.)
You can describe the alarming strides the doctrine of opening the African slave trade is making. The Northern Democracy are sore on that score.

Another article by Carl Sandburg will appear in The Washington Post tomorrow.

Montgomery Synod Renews Cuts Age Limit Its Lutheran For Cabbies Unity Efforts

Chicago, July 29 (AP).—The Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and other States today renewed efforts toward unity with the American Lutheran Church, and then listened to one of its minister-educators assert "the old Nazi idea is pretty well dead" in Germany.

The speakers at closing sessions of the synod's centennial convention was Dr. Carl Mundinger, president of St. John's College, Winfield, Kan., a member of a 14-man commission of clergymen who visited Europe under War Department auspices.

Dr. Mundinger asserted: "The Germans are living in a sort of ideological vacuum. The old Nazi idea is pretty well dead, but nothing has yet taken its place. The Germans are feeling their way, and some ideas are going to get in there."

He recommended that the synod send "about five outstanding theologians for the next two semesters to give a series of lectures in Heidelberg, Erlangen, and Goettingen," German universities.

The unity action was taken when delegates adopted a resolution declaring "our sincere desire that true Scriptural unity with the American Lutheran Church may be achieved."

The convention, however, also adopted another resolution rescinding 1938 measures proposing unity, asserting that subsequent efforts to reconcile theological differences "have admittedly not been satisfactory."

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief
Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly when they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's oldest way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 8 pints a day. When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatism, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's gives happy relief and will help the 18 million of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Tipoff of Raid Riles Sheriff

Sheriff Duer in his sweep of the boardwalk last night. It lasted an hour and a half.

About a hundred persons gathered around one boardwalk club as the raiders went inside. There was much booing and heckling. A pumper from the Ocean City Volunteer Fire Department stood by ready to shoot streams of water in case of trouble.

Only two machines were removed from most of the game rooms, although there were as many as a dozen in some of them. Trucks later worked their way up the side streets leading to the boardwalk and loaded the confiscated machines.

Brazil Seeks Loan From World Bank

By The Associated Press
John J. McCloy, World Bank president, said yesterday that Brazil has made a "tentative request" for a loan for use in power development.

McCloy told a news conference that the amount of the proposed loan has "not been fixed." A two-man economic mission of the bank has been sent to Brazil to discuss the request.

McCloy said the bank's dealings with Brazil have "absolutely no connection" with the trip by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder to that country. Snyder is now in Brazil on what he described in advance as a "social visit," but financial matters also are expected to engage his attention.

Dutch Negotiations Progress
McCloy also told reporters that for a $35-million-dollar loan over a three-year period is "pretty well along" toward completion, although the amount the bank will actually lend is "not set."

(Diplomatic officials predicted yesterday the amount will be 150 million dollars to 200 million dollars and that the loan by the bank—whose only loan to date is 250 million dollars to France—will be granted in a few weeks.)

2. The Bank will not be passing on "the merits or demerits" of the trouble in Indonesia, where Dutch soldiers are fighting republican troops. It will judge The Netherlands' application only as to whether it is a "sound, productive loan" with reasonable prospects of repayment.

3. The Bank, pleased with results of the recent sale of securities to American investors, does not plan any further sale in the "immediate future" and will give the market "a breathing spell."

No British Application
4. Britain has not applied for any loan from the World Bank nor indicated that it will, despite the rapid exhaustion of the $3,750,000,000 loan granted by the bank to the United States, a year ago.

5. An application by Denmark for a $50 million dollar loan from the bank is nearing the agreement stage. It was indicated a loan to Denmark will follow the proposed loan to the Netherlands.

6. The Bank views coal as an extremely important to the revival of Europe. If funds to stimulate production are needed—whether to England, Poland or the German Ruhr or elsewhere—the Bank will be "glad to consider an application from member countries, or their agencies."

7. France still has a "substantial amount" left of the 250 million dollars loaned her by the Bank in June and the understanding is that the money will last until about the end of this year at least.

8. The Bank would "necessarily have to correlate its action" with the Marshall Plan for aid to European countries which try to help each other if the plan "eventuates" and is on a substantial scale.

Deficit for Year Reported
The Bank has notified its 44 member countries that it operated at a deficit of $938,647 for the fiscal year ended June 30, McCloy announced.

The Bank's expenses for the period—consisting principally of $1,043,288 for salaries—were $2,142,376.35 while income was listed as $1,203,629.34.

McCloy said the extent of the deficit was due to the fact that there was no income from loans until June 9, when the Bank's initial 250 million dollar credit to France was ratified.

Between June 9 and June 30, he said, the French loan brought the Bank $108,710 in interest at 3 1/2 per cent; $175,840 on a commitment charge at 1 1/2 per cent a year; and $33,452 in another charge to build a special reserve for Bank obligations. The Bank drew $556,622 in interest on an investment of $155,710,195 in United States Treasury certificates during the 12-month period.

Expense items included $183,654 for expense allowances and payments of taxes on salaries, which the Bank takes care of for its employees; $164,208 for travel; and $60,804 for expenses of floating the Bank's first issue of bonds to American investors. The issue amounted to 250 million dollars.

Meanwhile, the subscribed capital stock of the Bank was increased from $8,613,500,000 to $9,024,500,000 as a result of entry by Syria and Lebanon into membership.

Few Nazis in German Labor Units, Frazer Says
New York, July 29 (AP)—Harry W. Frazer of Colorado Springs, Colo., president of the order of railway conductors, returned on the liner Mauretania today from the International Labor Organization conference at Geneva and said there were "few if any" Nazis in the German labor groups.

"They are strongly opposed to socialism and communism," Frazer said.

Frazer, who visited 30 days with German labor leaders, said that "the Russians have recently been flooding the American and British news in Germany with propaganda leaflets."

Judge Questions Rent Act's Validity

Associated Press Wirephoto
JUDGE PAUL JONES of Cleveland said yesterday that his doubts about the new rent control act "have been gradually crystallized into a conviction that it has no validity under the Constitution."

225 Tenants Agree to Shun 10% Rent Hike

With some 225 pledges received, the Tenants Association of Kenwood Gardens, Mount Rainier, Md., expects "more than 500" residents to agree not to sign leases calling for a "voluntary" 10 per cent rent hike.

The group formed recently when Owner Abraham S. Kay mailed letters requesting tenants of his housing units during the period 1914-apartment units to sign leases August 1, 1947, to December 31, 1948.

His letter claimed operating costs soared 22 per cent this year over 1946; taxes, 22 per cent; salaries and wages, 50 per cent.

In a letter to Kay and in others asking for pledges, the association charges the management with: "Continued neglect... disregard of requests for improvements and repairs... and complete indifference."

Kay's figures are "not convincing," the group argues, because 1944 and 1947 are not comparable years since all three units were not in full operation in 1944.

Moreover, rents are higher than in comparable projects, the association states.

On the District rent front, 12 tenants of Kew Gardens, 2700 Q St. N.W., yesterday testified before Rent Control Examiner James G. Ryan at a hearing on a request for 12 to 17 per cent raises on 54 units.

Charles J. Lanks, resident manager, said the boost is necessitated by higher taxes—$3000 more in 1947 than in 1941; cost of capital improvements—$29,719.62 since 1941, and increased operating expenses—some $1200 more in 1946 than in 1941.

Leahy Helped, Kaiser Says to President Roosevelt after the Navy had turned thumbs down on the project. A Navy Board had rejected the idea, 16 to 0.

But later, after Kaiser began rolling off one carrier a week, he said, the Navy reversed its own position and began "to put the heat of hell 'on me' to get the carriers."

Ferguson asked him if Interior Secretary Julius Krug's statement

Admiral Leahy's Braid Impressed Calhoun

A novel description of Fleet Admiral William D. Leahy, Chief of Staff to the Commander in Chief and a member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, was given yesterday by Chad F. Calhoun, an executive in the Kaiser organization.

Speaking of a White House meeting between Henry Kaiser and Admiral Leahy, Calhoun said:

"We assumed he was of military importance because he was all dressed up in uniform."

that Kaiser had "put the heat of hell" on everyone in Washington to get over the cargo plane idea was a fair description.

"I approve those words," said Kaiser. "That's right. And the war was putting the heat of hell on all of us."

Claims Idea for Own

It was Nelson, Kaiser said, who decided that the contract with the Kaiser-Hughes corporation was to be handled by Jesse Jones for the Defense Plants Corporation.

And it was Jones, he declared, who made the decision that Howard Hughes was to handle all the engineering and production of the planes as soon as the contract was signed.

"Is this a fair statement then," Ferguson queried, "your part was the getting of the contract for three flying boats or cargo ships?"

Kaiser replied, "My part was the idea—the conception of it."

Jones had more faith in Hughes as an airplane builder, Kaiser said, than he did in Kaiser.

Hughes Called Reliable

The former RFC chief said of Hughes, Kaiser testified:

"You are safe in proceeding with Howard Hughes. I have known him since he was a boy—and I knew his able father before him—and I know of no more capable and reliable man than Howard Hughes."

Jones told Kaiser he was "to let Hughes alone," the valuable builder insisted.

"Jones' position with me was always 'for God's sake stick to what you are doing,'" Kaiser beamed. "He didn't want me to take on anything more."

Calhoun's notes indicated that about this time both Admiral Emory Land of the Maritime Commission and Jones wanted to handle the cargo boat contracts.

Finds It Amusing

At the time he commented:

"It is most amusing now (after so many rejections) to see two strong Government agencies fighting for the privilege of building the cargo ships."

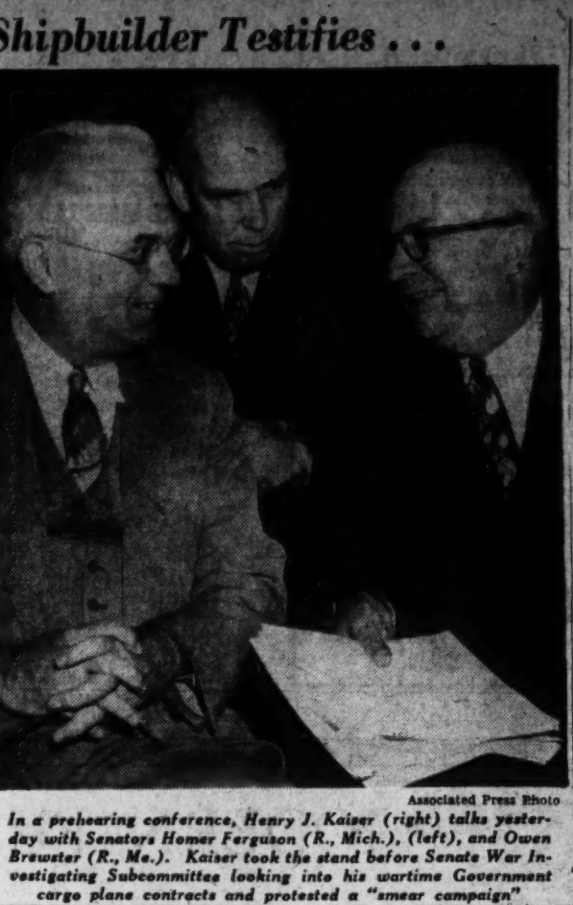

Kaiser related to the committee how he called Jones, when he learned Land also was interested in the project, and said:

"You are two good friends of mine, and I am glad to have you."

interested, but I don't want to get caught in a cross-fire here."

During his testimony, Kaiser made public for the first time the reason why the joint venture in which he and Hughes were engaged was canceled and the flying boat contract taken over by Hughes alone.

From the moment the contract had been signed in 1942 all the responsibility had been on Hughes' shoulders anyway, Kaiser declared.

Girl Sleeps in Auto In Slip—Is Arrested

Houston, Tex. (U.P.)—In Houston it's an offense to go to sleep in one's own car without sufficient clothing—as Olga Osborne, 21-year-old photographic darkroom employee, found out.

Patrolman Ed White found the attractive young woman curled up in the seat of her coupe, wearing only a pink rayon slip for a nightgown. He arrested her.

"I removed my dress so as not to get any wrinkles in it," she sobbed. "I tried all day Sunday to find a room. I had only $3 and I just had to sleep in my car."

She told police she had just taken the job at $90 a month and didn't have a payday yet. An understanding desk sergeant released her so she could go back to work.

Britain Relaxes Curbs On European Travel

London (U.P.)—It is now possible to travel freely through five European countries without getting visas. Britain has just cut red tape to make overseas travel as easy as possible. Travelers going from Britain to the continent can visit France, Norway, Denmark, Sweden and Holland without visas.

The new relaxation stems from Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin's declaration that international travel is the quickest way to a better understanding between nations.

Passports and travel identity cards can be had within 24 hours of application under the new rapid service which eliminates lengthy correspondence and in-person visits to the passport office.

How to Make Money On Cropland Land

Chicago (U.P.)—The Chicago and Northwestern Railway plans to show farmers how to make money on land unfit for crops by planting trees.

The railway has chosen an experimental plot at Spooner, Wis. On April 28, a mechanical tree planter began putting 10,000 trees in the ground.

The University of Wisconsin and the State Highway Department are cooperating. The tract of land is similar to nonagricultural farm areas in States bordering the Great Lakes.

Hot Dog!

Chicago (U.P.)—His creative genius earned for John Thompson, 14, the title of champion Boy Scout wiener roaster of Chicago and an Army jungle hammock at the National Food Show held here. The prize-winning hot dog comes out wrapped in lettuce, and garnished with string beans and carrots.

Candy Kid Sought

Gary, Ind. (U.P.)—Police in Gary are looking for a youngster with a stomachache. A grocer reported his store was entered and 800 candy bars taken. Investigators said the fingerprints on a smashed door were made by a child.

Grenade as a Tip

Police Freed Man Wanted For Murder

A man wanted for murder in Newark, N. J., was released by Alexandria police on July 18 because of a misunderstanding between the two departments, it was learned yesterday.

Lieut. Russell A. Hawes, chief of detectives in Alexandria, explained that Antonio Carlos Winsord, 33, was arrested July 17 sleeping in an automobile.

On questioning, Winsord told police that he believed he had killed his wife several weeks before in Newark. To corroborate this story, Alexandria police called Newark, only to hear that Winsord was not wanted there. He was released July 18.

However, the Federal Bureau of Investigation informed Alexandria police yesterday that Winsord was wanted for the murder of his wife last July 2.

Moses Report Is Focus of Talk About Industries of Germany

By Bert Andrews

The top foreign issue today among Washington officials is the problem of German industries and the center of discussion is the report of Robert Moses, Construction Co-ordinator of New York City. The text of this document has been pigeonholed by the War Department at the request of the State Department. Moses made the three-week tour of the British and American zones at the request of General Lucius D. Clay, United States Military Governor.

The full text of the report is not available for publication since Moses is obeying the War Department and refuses to give it out. But sections of it are widely known in Washington and the report in part has been made available to the New York Herald Tribune.

Moses recommends that coal production in the Ruhr be placed under a single authority as the first essential approach to the economic problem of Germany and Europe. The section of the report relating to the Ruhr says that "Germans in other than the Ruhr area say that they are prepared temporarily to defer and subordinate their local requirements and to make genuine sacrifices in favor of the Ruhr because they realize the supreme importance of coal as the basis for all production. If the food ration of the nonfarming, urban Ruhr population can be raised, and Ruhr coal production increased by food, housing, consumer goods and other

Nevius Tract, Out as Hospital Site, Subject for Speculation

The decision of the House Appropriations Committee which ruled out the Nevius tract as the site of the new Greater Washington veterans hospital has set off widespread speculation as to the ultimate disposition of the land. The 25 acres of woodland on the Virginia side of Memorial Bridge, taken last year by the Federal Government by condemnation proceedings when owners turned down an offer of $850,000, will be turned over to the War Assets Administration for disposal. It will not revert automatically to the previous owners.

On this score, Avon M. Nevius, retired vice president of the Riggs Bank and former owner of the land, said yesterday, "It is premature at this time to discuss whether or not I'll get the land back. It must be offered to me first."

The War Assets Administration must offer it to all Federal agencies, the State of Virginia, and Arlington County. They would have to pay at least what the Federal Government paid for the land, and possibly more.

One possibility is that Fort Myer would receive the land for use as an extension.

District Guard Going to Camp

Units of the District National Guard will attend field camp this summer for the first time since 1940.

Ground force units will be at Fort George G. Meade, Md., from August 3 to 17, and Air Force units will train at Andrews Field from August 10 to 24.

More than 300 District Guardsmen will leave for Fort Meade at 8 a. m. Sunday from the National Guard Armory, 20th and East Capitol sts.

Units attending the training period at Fort Meade will include State Headquarters Detachment; 360th Antiaircraft Artillery Group, commanded by Col. Le Roy S. Mann, who will be camp commander; and the battalions composing the group, the 260th AAA Gun Battery, the 260th AAA Gun Battery, the 260th AAA Gun Battery, and the 260th AAA Gun Battery.

Prince Georges To Modernize County Office

Modernization of official accounting work in Prince Georges County, Md., was ordered yesterday by the County Commissioners at their meeting in Upper Marlboro, Md.

The board directed installation for the county treasurer's office to facilitate the preparation of tax bills. They will be the nucleus of a county accounting system planned to include eventually all departments.

Changeover from the present system is expected to start at the beginning of the year.

The IBM company will send four trained clerks to aid county clerks in the changeover.

Predicts Saving

County Treasurer James B. Bland estimated that use of the machines will save approximately $3500 a year. Tax bills will be ready for mailing within a month after the commissioners fix the rate, instead of the three to four months now required, he predicted.

The machines also will be used in the office of County Assessor Louis Kutch in recording the county assessment books.

A cash register to keep track of the various funds collected in tax bills also was ordered for the treasurer's office.

Carson Named

William A. Carson, president of the board, pointed out that the county now is a 153-million-dollar corporation handling close to three million dollars each year, and modern methods are needed to keep up with the growth of the county business.

The commissioners named Carson to meet with Housing Expediter Henry J. Sullivan of the Federal Works Agency and members of the hospital board tomorrow to discuss erection of an additional wing at the Prince Georges County General Hospital, Cheverly, Md. Hospital board members to be at the meeting, 2 p. m., at FWA, are William Bowie, Russell Jones and R. H. Slingfill.

How are things in Sverdlovsk?

HAROLD E. STASSEN answers some of America's questions about life in Everytown, U.S.S.R.

Are the people as antagonistic as their officials?

Stassen: "It seems clear that the people of Russia feel very friendly toward America. Their references to America as their great ally during the war and as a place where the workers get along well, are too widespread not to be real. One gets the impression that it would take a long time for even a concerted propaganda drive by the government to change the opinion of the people as to the friendship of America."

What sort of living do the people make?

Stassen: "The average Russian worker is earning about $45 to $50 a month. The Petrovs, a family I visited in Sverdlovsk, in the Ural Mountain area, earn $100 a month (he, $75; she, $25) for a 48-hour week. Two small rooms cost $12 a month, and food for themselves and three children, between $70 and $75. Their main concerns: Food, money, clothing—and peace. 'We can have nothing,' Sergei Petrov told me earnestly, 'without peace.'"

What's happened to Russia's vast manpower supply?

Stassen: "The combination of very heavy casualties during the war, a large standing army now, heavy war damage, and a limited amount of mechanization results in extreme shortages of manpower. Women workers are needed desperately in Russia. Literally all women work, for unless a woman has children under eight years of age she does not receive a ration card unless she works. Fourteen-year-old boys work half-days; fifteen-year-olds, full time."

Is Russia producing as much as we are?

Stassen: "Russian production is handicapped by a shortage of machine tools. What they have is pre-war or American Lend-Lease, but they do not begin to supply the total industrial needs of the country. On the whole, the average Russian worker accomplishes about 20% of what the average American worker does. In addition, the rigidity of the completely socialized, centralized state results in a lack of flexibility and low production."

How do the people's lives compare to ours?

Stassen: "It seems fair to say that the working people of Russia are working harder and longer hours and obtaining less production and receiving lower wages and a much lower standard of living than are American workers. The average Russian worker lives at a standard less than 20% of ours. To him, such luxuries as a car, refrigerator or radio are so far out of reach they are undreamed of. Only officials, artists or scientists live by standards similar to ours."

How about the children—what's their attitude?

Stassen: "One of the most encouraging things of my entire journey was the friendly attitude of the school children. When I asked them, 'What do you know about America?' they answered: 'America is our friend. America helped win the war.' In one classroom that I selected personally, I singled out an eleven-year-old to talk to. After an extended conversation, her parting statement was: 'Tell the children of America that we thank them for their friendship.'"

Curbs Proposed on Liquor Ads That Imply To Youth Drinking Is Necessary to Success

By the United Press
A two-member Senate Commerce Subcommittee yesterday proposed legislation making it illegal for liquor advertisers to "imply that young folks have to absorb a lot of booze if they're going to amount to anything."

The two Senators, Clyde M. Reed (R., Kans.) and Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.), were assigned to study a bill introduced by Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.) under which all liquor advertising would be banned. They agreed at a meeting yesterday that Capper's sweeping bill would not be "practical" in its present form and offered their own substitute.

It would forbid the publication or broadcast of advertisements which "by word, device or sound imply that the use of liquor is beneficial to health, will increase social or business prestige, or is traditional in American family life." Ads which contained such "impressions" would be classed as "misleading under the Federal Trade Commission Act."

The new version was drafted by Reed. Johnson endorsed it but said that it does not go quite far enough. He suggested an added clause to make it illegal for any liquor, wine or beer advertisement to include a picture of a woman, child or family scene.

Hearings Are Probable
The Reed bill and Johnson's added proposal will be submitted to the full Senate Commerce Committee next January. Reed "assured" that public hearings would be held.

"There is considerable sentiment in the country that the liquor interests have gone too far in their advertising," Reed said. "We are particularly concerned with the effects on young men and women. Liquor manufacturers have conceived some very enticing advertising to imply that people—particularly young folks—have got to absorb a lot of booze if they're going to amount to anything."

Ernest Biddle, 2 Associates, Eyes Blackened Borrow From Policeman to Pay $5 Fines

New York, July 25 (AP).—A member of Philadelphia's socially prominent Biddle family and two companions at a party which ended in a fight won their freedom in Magistrate's Court today by borrowing $5 from the policeman who arrested them.

Ernest Biddle, 29, Villanova, Pa., and Mr. and Mrs. John McLennan of New York and Tyngsboro, Mass., wound up with a black eye apiece in an early morning street fight which drew a crowd and turned a quiet East Side residential neighborhood into bedlam.

Magistrate Matthew Fagan, after police told their story, fined the three defendants $5 each. Biddle and McLennan had $9 between them. Mrs. Biddle, who witnessed the fight but did not participate, produced another $1.

Patrolman Ernest Vohs contributed the remaining $5 so all three could go home.

Vohs and another patrolman, who described Biddle and the McLennans as "partly intoxicated," said an argument started on the sidewalk as the four left Biddle.

the party. Mrs. McLennan, they said, apparently slipped against a parked car. Biddle stepped into the argument and Mrs. McLennan struck him on the right eye. The hearing failed to disclose who struck McLennan.

Biddle said he was the son of a retired publisher. Livingston

Two Big Steel Leaders Raise Prices $5 a Ton

New York, July 25 (AP).—U. S. Steel Corp. and Bethlehem Steel Corp., producers of more than half the Nation's steel, completed a cycle of price increases today that industry sources estimated would take more than 300 million dollars out of consumers' pocketbooks.

The companies announced increases averaging $5 a ton for the raw material for hundreds of finished products.

The new quotations probably will be translated at the retail level into higher prices for such things as automobiles, farm equipment, refrigerators.

First Dent Last Week

The first dent in the steel price front was made last week by American Rolling Mill Co.

Almost every company stated that higher prices were forced by rising costs. Specifically, Irving S. Olds, U. S. Steel Corp. chairman, stated after a meeting of "Big Steel" directors today:

"This increase in steel prices is made necessary by substantially higher employment costs; the mounting costs of raw materials—such as scrap, tin, lead, zinc, copper and palm oil... the increased costs of goods and services which these subsidiaries (U. S. Steel Corp. operating subsidiaries) must purchase in order to carry on their business; and the substantially greater cost of replacing worn-out facilities."

"As an illustration of recent higher costs, the price of scrap has advanced more than $10 a ton in the last two months."

Olds stated that the $5-a-ton average increase did "not include any amount to cover increased costs which will result from the recent coal labor settlement."

Price Review to Come

"Such additional cost to United States Steel are now estimated to amount to more than 30 million dollars a year, or a further increase of at least $1.50 a ton of finished steel," Olds said.

He added that when the effects of the wage boost on the cost of coal production are assessed, "we will have to review the price situation in regard to steel."

"In the meantime, we may be able to effect some economies in steel production," Olds said. "Also it is hoped that the coal productivity rate will be increased, which might lower the costs of coal for us."

Benjamin F. Fairless, president of United States Steel, said several weeks ago that "Big Steel" would not raise prices until a "fair test" had been made of cost factors re-

FOR 17 YEARS, AMERICA HAS SAID...

"When there's a Choice it's a PHILCO!"

If you're about to buy a radio or radio-phonograph, you're sitting in the driver's seat again.

TODAY, FOR THE FIRST TIME IN SIX YEARS, you don't have to "take what you can get" any more. You can walk into your dealer's store, choose what you really want on the basis of quality, tone, performance and reputation... and buy it for immediate delivery.

THAT'S WHY YOU'LL WANT TO SEE the new 1948 Philco radios and radio-phonographs arriving now at your Philco dealer. Philco, the industry leader, is back in full production. Vast new factories with the longest radio production lines in the world are working at new efficiency, turning out new 1948 Philcos at the greatest rate in their history.

BUT MUCH MORE IMPORTANT, in these days of post-war readjustment, Philco is bringing you the same standard of value which has made its name "famous for quality the world over." With all its resources as the world's largest radio manufacturer, there is no price which Philco could not meet or beat. But there is a standard of quality with which Philco makes no compromise.

WHEREVER RADIOS and radio-phonographs are sold, the Philco name stands for quality and value... the standard of comparison for radio buyers everywhere. In its new models, Philco has kept faith with that reputation. In every 1948 Philco, from $19.95 up, you get the utmost in tone, performance and workmanship for the price you pay... PLUS, the assurance of years of enjoyment and satisfaction which are implied in the Philco name.

THIS YEAR, AGAIN, impartial surveys* show that of all who name the radio-phonograph they will buy, 50% want a Philco. For 17 years, America has said... "When there's a choice, it's a Philco!" So when you make your purchase, let Philco quality be your guide... accept no less and pay no more.

Police Inquiry

Chief Investigator Robert E. Lee for the House Appropriations Committee has unexpectedly retrieved the probe into local police crime reporting which was lost in the Senate's last-minute shuffle after being authorized by the Senate District Committee. The investigation will be all of a piece with a wider inquiry into police jurisdiction in the District initiated in the House Appropriations Committee by the chairman of the Appropriations District Subcommittee, Representative Walt Horan. Chairman John Taber, evidently, gave the green light to Chief Investigator Lee after Senator Olin D. Johnston had succeeded in thwarting a senatorial inquiry. To be sure, a special inquiry would have been preferable, but in spite of Mr. Lee's comprehensive terms of reference, we have no doubt that the zeal and experience of Mr. Lee's staff insures a competent job. It is to be hoped that the investigation gets a high place on the list of investigations on the House Appropriations Committee's calendar.

The job calls for vigorous spadework into a situation overlaid by years of neglect and noninterference. It may conceivably encompass a probe, for instance, into income tax returns, which, in view of the lack of authorization in the House decision, may call for White House permission. This would doubtless have been in the mind of any special counsel hired by the Senate District Committee. For the Senate committee had been affronted by the nonchalance of Commissioner Young and Superintendent Barrett and had shown a determination to get at the roots of our municipal scandal. The words of its formal resolution testified to that. The pledge was for a "full and complete study and investigation of law enforcement and police administration" in the District.

Since this resolution was passed, Superintendent Barrett has been singing a different tune, and we welcome it. After getting at his friend, Senator Olin D. Johnston, who proceeded to kill a special senatorial inquiry, he started assiduously to clean house, prodded, no doubt, by more than one authority which had been scandalized by our fake crime statistics and all that the omissions implied. We take his new system at face value. Honest reporting is seemingly in practice, and, whatever the House may find out, the situation has changed radically. Nevertheless the community has a lively interest in such an inquiry as Mr. Lee will do. For it may be a real landmark of progress in revamping our municipal government along responsible and progressive lines, and in beginning the task of making the District a model community for other cities in the United States.

Atomic Security

The tizzy that has been brewed up in an effort to reimpose military control of atomic energy should be thoroughly punctured by the statement of Maj. Gen. Leslie R. Groves. The original head of the Manhattan Project has disclaimed reports that he has sought to discredit the Atomic Energy Commission. He also has reiterated his 1945 recommendation that atomic energy should be under civilian control. Possibly, since General Groves has not always displayed a friendly attitude toward the metamorphosis of his wartime domain, a grain of salt is warranted with his pronouncement. Nonetheless, we hope he will stick to it. If he is to be taken at his word, then the recent furor over "leakage" of atomic secrets goes straight back to Chairman J. Parnell Thomas of the House Un-American Activities Committee. Mr. Thomas has been abetted in his foaming by Senator McKellar, who has sponsored a bill to give atomic energy back to the Army.

Mr. Thomas in particular has engaged in a campaign of innuendo against the Atomic Energy Commission and scientific personnel in general. He has implied that security precautions at Oak Ridge are inadequate and that secret information is being carted off wholesale. The salient matter of evidence, however, has been conspicuously lacking. Either he should document his charges, or they should stand exposed as groundless. If his latest attempt to jump on the bandwagon of military control is any indication, his insinuations are vapid. The theft of information by two Army sergeants, on which Mr. Thomas pounced so gleefully, occurred at Los Alamos while the Army was still in charge of atomic energy. The illogic of Mr. Thomas' position, we think, is obvious to everyone but Mr. Thomas.

We need assurance, of course, that ample precautions are being taken to prevent atomic information from being stolen for possible use against us. Such assurance has been forthcoming in Senator Hickenlooper's explanation that safeguards at our atomic energy plants have been materially strengthened since the civilian commission took over in January. There is still further assurance in the proposal Senator Hickenlooper has outlined to change criminal law to permit prosecution of atomic information violators without compromising secrets, providing this can be done within the framework of constitutional liberties. With the knowledge that atomic security is under constant scrutiny, the smears of a few disgruntled witch-hunters should not be permitted to fetter the work of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Memo For Europe

Adopting a new and somewhat arrogant practice, we are addressing ourselves to Europe, that is to say, the Cooperative Europe that we hope is in the making. Some things that have been happening on this side of the ocean may have failed to catch its eye. This country is putting itself in a position to appraise and consider the statement on continental aid which is due for presentation sometime in September. On the executive side there is the resumption of State Department-Senate conversations on an aid program. Studies are also under way at the President's direction within the Interior Department and the Council of Economic Advisers. One will sum up the state of our national resources, the other will examine the impact upon our national economy of an aid program. Outside the Administration, but under the guidance of Secretary Harriman, another committee is at work, with the personnel representing the cream of our academic and our economic life. It is the Committee of Nineteen, and the members are hard at work on ways and means of carrying out an aid program in a manner that will least damage our own economy.

This is a measure of the wholehearted effort that is going into the inquiry at the American end in following up the Marshall proposals. But it is not all. Congress, as the body with power over the purse, is matching the preparations on the executive side. Senator Vandenberg on June 13 welcomed the Marshall initiative because it was an attempt to face the problem on an over-all basis instead of leaving unanticipated crises to be dealt with as they arose. He called for the kind of "vision and courage" on the part of the American people that he has shown he can himself supply. The House has been equally active and prudent. Already an excellent preliminary report is available analyzing the nature of the European reconstruction problem and some of the existing studies of it. The report is the work of a subcommittee headed by Representative Vorys. One of the last House acts before the adjournment, moreover, was the setting up of a Select Committee on Foreign Aid. Representative Eaton is titular chairman, but upon the vice chairman, Representative Herter, will fall the job of organization. The committee, which will be helped by first-rate counsel, will split up into subcommittees and look over the reconstruction job on the spot. Thus the Legislature is paralleling the Executive in its preparations for what may come out of Cooperative Europe.

What should especially be noted in Europe is the more or less neglected decision of Congress to arm the President with the weapons wherewith to make any cooperative plan effective. Export controls have been renewed. Those war powers enabling the President to allocate goods for the export market out of domestic consumption have likewise been renewed. If last November anybody had suggested that Congress would be so cooperative, we should have dubbed him an incorrigible optimist. The Eightieth Congress started out to sweep away the war and its emergency statutes. That halfway through the session it thought better of this determination is a tribute to the way it absorbed the lessons of events. Senator Flanders would say that this forwardness betokened a resolution to discard crisis action.

It is to be hoped that the men who are trying to build up a Cooperative Europe in Paris will ponder these words and deeds. The follow-up of the Marshall proposals in America has been statesmanlike. But there will be no follow-through unless there is produced in Paris a similar initiative. In our opinion a cardinal mistake was made in the failure of the first plenary session in Paris to issue a declaration of interdependence. We have already remarked upon the false note in British official comment, which was taken up by Foreign Minister Bidault in the Chamber of Deputies, on the advantage to our export trade in financing Western Europe. Then the French, as if abashed by their initial courage, shifted their eye off the ball—the ball of "a working economy" for Europe inclusive of the Ruhr's resources—and indulged in a sudden spasm of fear that we intended to build up a strong Germany. Paul Reynaud did a good deal to assuage this fear when he asked in the Chamber how militarism could be made out of ingots of steel without the manufacturing apparatus, but the quaking continues. Frightened men, victims rather than controllers of the great panic that has much of Europe in its grip, will never be masters of events.

The fright, which, of course, does not extend to Mr. Bevin and Count Sforza, has more to do with a minatory Russia than with a prostrate Germany. If this persists, there will be no European working economy for America to join with Europe in financing. The working economy that this country seeks can be produced by the kind of organization that has been set up in Washington. Our exports and allocation controls require on the opposite side of the ocean import and allocation controls on a continental basis. The nervous French are being reminded by Paul Reynaud that what made Hitler strong was the lack in the democracies of la lucidité et l'audace—of clear thinking and courage. With clear thinking and courage, Cooperative Europe will come through and America, we are confident, will come across.

Modish Men

Men may be feeling a little superior these days as they observe the predicament of their women folk caught in a fashion revolution that is making current wardrobes obsolete. But they may not have the last laugh. Clothiers have awakened to the fact that the progressive standardization of men's apparel during the last 100 years was a mistake from the standpoint of business. Hence a "dress for the occasion" drive is in the making. Having gotten men back into tuxedos and tails for postwar evening events, the clothiers now would see that they wear business suits only for business, sportswear for sport (presumably such as watching a ball game) and more formal attire as the occasion demands. We assume this includes the diplomatic "striped pants" effect for church, cocktail parties and the fancier luncheons. Also, we learn, style changes in men's attire are to be stepped up, and the wearing of hats emphasized as a sign of good grooming and sound thinking.

These are not all of men's clothes troubles. Suits will be short in supply for another year, and hence expensive. Recently the joint Congressional Committee on the Economic Report was told that because of a shortage of workers in the men's clothing industry only 22 million suits were produced last year. Normal demand is for 28 million. But pent-up demands have run this figure up to between 30 and 35 million. Clothing demands also will be increased when former GI's cash their terminal leave bonds in September. A survey has shown that more than half expect to cash and spend their bonds, and that clothing is high on their list of needs. However, there is one consolation about all this occasion dressing and suit scarcity. Men will have a logical and telling excuse—one that their wives will well understand—for staying home from parties, lectures, husbands' nights, teas, musicales, other events to which they are told they "really ought to go." They can say with conviction they haven't a thing on earth to wear.

Brewster's Millionaires

The senatorial investigation into the wartime relationships between Mr. Howard Hughes and certain high-ranking officers of the Army and certain eminent Government officials has afforded so far a valuable education into the business methods of our more enterprising millionaires. Publicity has long been a recognized and indeed indispensable means of creating the state of mind called "consumer acceptance." The more familiar and traditional vehicles of publicity are, of course, paid advertisements in newspapers and magazines, radio commercials, and folders, brochures, booklets, dealer helps, and so on, sent at prescribed rates through the United States mails, and the occasional distribution to newspapers and press associations of mimeographed statements believed to contain enough public interest to warrant free publication. When, however, the consumer is a Government engaged in a war against powerful and ruthless enemies a somewhat different and more elaborate technique is necessary.

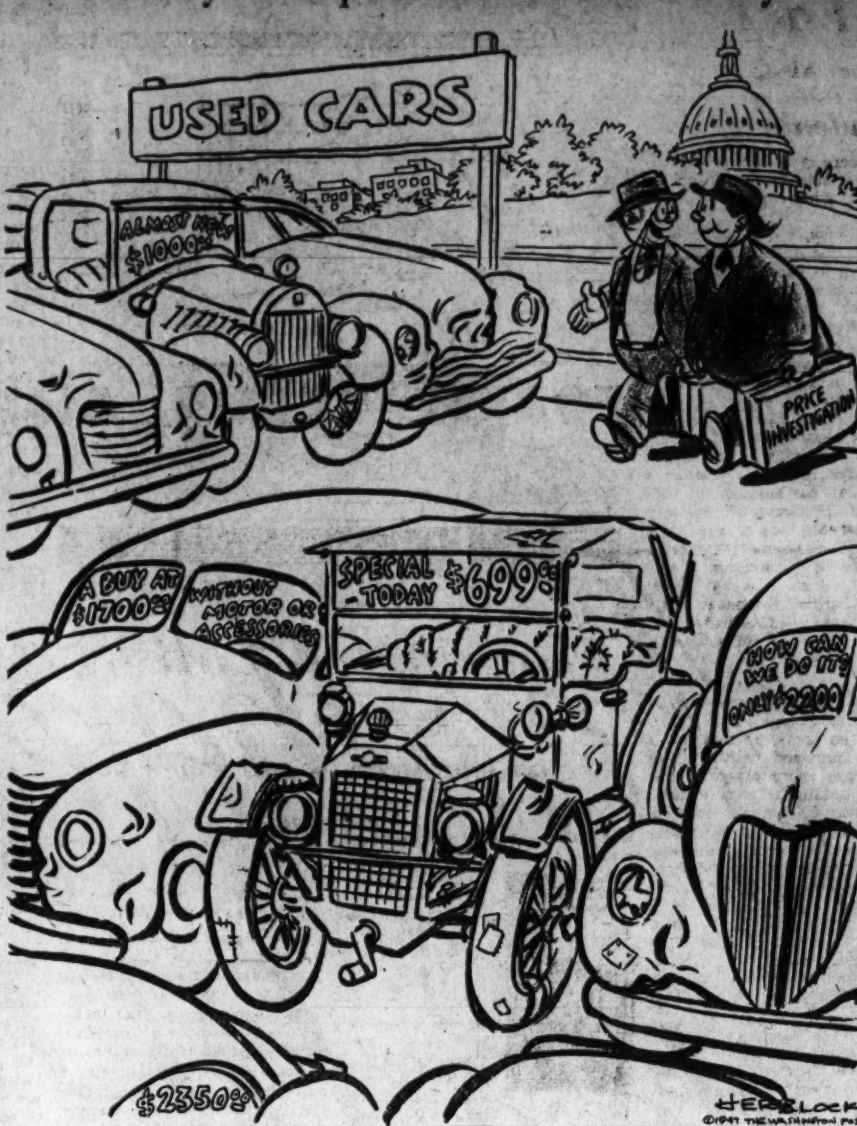

Mr. Hughes, for example, had in his publicity staff a specialist named Johnny Meyer. It is said that Mr. Meyer's method of persuading the Government that it really needed cargo planes that Mr. Hughes wanted to build, was to throw elegant and expensive parties to which he invited certain members of the male sex, who were thought to have a certain influence in the award of contracts, and certain members of the female sex chosen apparently for purely anatomical reasons.

Mr. Meyer's principle, as we gather, was that the presence of these young ladies exerted some tonic effect upon the minds of tired and overworked brass hats and that they temporarily to dismiss other worries from their minds and concentrate on the question of Mr. Hughes' planes. Of course, it would be interesting to have an authoritative explanation of the method from Mr. Meyer himself, but this is said to be impossible at the moment, since he was last reported in South America engaged in some anthropological study of the quaint customs of the Patagonians.

It occurs to us, however, that Mr. Meyer's methods of advising the Government that Mr. Hughes was willing to do everything in his power to assist the war effort, while no doubt highly effective, were not without some unforeseen disadvantages. We suspect somehow that the attention given to the current investigation into the relationship, if any, among Mr. Hughes, Mr. Henry Kaiser and Gen. Elliott Roosevelt would have been somewhat less had not the story lent itself so readily to interesting illustration. We also suspect that when it comes to the finer techniques of publicity Mr. Meyer has at least a peer in Senator Brewster.

And for another thing, Mr. Meyer's methods were neither so original nor so daring as might appear to the uninitiated reader. That, as we understand, was the conventional method of conducting business with the Government in the high, wide and handsome days of 1942-43. It ran into money of course, but neither the enterprisers nor the entertained needed to worry much about that. For presumably it was all charged up to the taxpayer, whose generosity in such matters is well known and apparently limitless.

Letters To The Editor

Eisler And Marx

In The Washington Post of July 26, appears a report about the trial against me under the headline "Eisler Compared Himself to Karl Marx, FBI Agent Says." For the sake of true reporting it may interest you to know that I never compared myself with Karl Marx, and even the FBI agent, Mr. Edward F. Miles, who testified as a witness, did not make any such statement. The FBI agent gave testimony about a public meeting in New York City on December 11, 1946, in which I said that Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels are dead, and the Un-American Activities Committee could not investigate them.

As my speech about which the FBI agent testified was printed in form of a pamphlet I will quote what I really said in this meeting: "Heinrich Heine wrote in a biting satirical poem—directed against the Prussian police—about foreigners who are always the bad boys, sowing the bad seeds of rebellion, while the pious natives are never disrespectful sinners toward their authorities and their ideas. At that time, however, the Prussian police and their spies and 'agent provocateurs' could not yet use clichés like 'Stalin Agent' or 'Soviet Agent' against progressives and especially against the Communists. Because, after all, the founders of scientific communism and socialism were Germans themselves, Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels. By the way—I want to inform the Rankin Committee that both are dead. No use investigating them."

I do not mind being called an atom bomb spy and all other names. My life has taught me to take such things as one takes bad weather. But I resent the insinuation that I compare myself to Karl Marx, one of the greatest geniuses humanity ever produced. I am a Marxist, but no Karl Marx. GERHART EISLER, Washington.

"1067 And All That"

May I thank you for your editorial of July 19, "1067 And All That?"

It is encouraging to find a paper of the stature and prominence of The Washington Post speaking the truth when it is unpopular and neglected. The thing about the present moment of history that seems to me most grave and frightening is not the starvation and despair that stalk in what was Germany. It is not even the present perilous international situation, which the United States and Great Britain invited by their unconditional surrender policy and its sequel at Yalta and Potsdam, designed as it was with perfect inevitableness to create a power vacuum in Europe.

No, the really grave and alarming thing is the apathy and insensitiveness—not I believe of our people as a whole, but of our political leaders, our military commanders and Governors, and our press and radio—in the face of the cry for mercy of millions of our fellow human beings, most of them people very much like ourselves. General MacArthur, to his everlasting credit, has spoken out not only as a conqueror but as a Christian, enunciating a national policy in terms of both justice and charity, and at least we have no reason to hang our heads in shame because of what we have done or left undone as an occupying power in the Orient.

With regard to the West, I have waited in vain to hear from our political or military leaders one really prophetic or humanitarian or Christian word. Nor do I acquire the churches. Here and there courageous things have been said by Christians, and splendid work has been done in relief. But no voice that could be heard round the land or even throughout Christian America, has been raised, and I for one have our silence and indifference to my conscience.

For these reasons your editorial

British Austerity

As a common worker, I present the true facts of life in this country, since the leftist papers in this country decry all references made by the aristocracy or intelligentsia. We are poverty stricken, starved and down at the heel; our rations merely enable us to breathe and our clothes do not keep us warm.

Consider two ounces of butter and two ounces of tea and our present ration of coal, while posters bid us "work or want."

How can a starving baby thrive and grow? It cannot and neither can we give the maximum while our labor leaders dose us with austerity, more austerity and much more austerity.

We were the little, but solid, fortress which kept the great menacing Hitler and his wolves at bay and wore their strength down before they attacked Russia. We toiled and sweated and hoped for greater things, victory against slavery for the whole world had been accomplished. Our physical energies are run down and we do not have the great benefits of lend-lease in the way of food.

America, so far away from Europe, can scarcely imagine how much we have paid in lives and health to help save the world. If she did, a good bumping loan without hindrance would come to help us get on our feet to spin and toil, so that all might reap.

All eyes and ears in Britain are turned on that great humanitarian, General Marshall. We value his foresight, because he surely knows that the Russian bear is just like the German wolf, with the same greedy instincts.

Universal Military Training

Many people in the United States are definitely opposed to universal military training, as are many organizations such as the American Education Fellowship, American Federation of Teachers, Northern Baptist Educational Institutions, American Council on Education, National Education Association, various church organizations and Iowa farmers, as shown by a recent poll.

However, little if any mention of opposition to UMT is reported in newspapers or magazines, while statements by the "brass hats" are accepted as gospel and so reported. Conscription is foreign to the American way of life. Therefore, the Army has spent lavishly of public money to sell the program to the people. The Fort Knox UMT unit was set up as a model of what the program would be all over the country if UMT is adopted, and civilians from all walks of life have been flown there to see the unit and be favorably impressed and sold on the idea. Dr. Alexander Stewart, a Protestant clergyman, was one of the visitors.

Mothers of the Nation have been told that life at the Fort Knox UMT unit was ideal—very little swearing, practically no gambling, and that bartenders were refusing to sell the trainees alcoholic beverages. However, Dr. Stewart found this was not entirely true.

An Untee told Dr. Stewart: "We are supposed to register at the USO or have some place to stay overnight with approved friends. We register at the USO and then go where we want to and spend the night. Sometimes we take our UMT triangle off our arms and then we can get away with anything and nobody is the wiser." When bartenders were asked if they knew Untees and sold to them, one replied, "As long as he looks old enough, I treat them all alike. I don't know one from the other." Another bartender said he had never heard of Untees. A third said he thought that could be heard round the land or even throughout Christian America, has been raised, and I for one have our silence and indifference to my conscience.

Meat Price "Villain"

By Malvina Lindsay

Back To Hamburgers?

AT A RECENT forum to track down the culprit responsible for soaring meat prices, all of the accused made convincing alibis. The farmer stoutly maintained he was barely making ends meet. The packer sorrowfully told how he had emptied his pockets paying high wages and "absorbing price increases." The retailer insisted he was nearly bankrupt through high costs.

When the guilt could not be hung on hungry foreigners—who were found to be getting less than 3 per cent of this year's record meat production—it was passed on to the consumer. Virtually the same buck-passing had occurred when a congressional committee briefly looked into food prices.

It's the old story of supply and demand, we are told on all sides. The consumer is buying more meat, and running up demand, because he is working regularly, receiving higher wages. And he is buying steak and pork chops instead of hamburger and bologna.

NO ONE PROPOSES openly that workers decrease demand by going back to their old diets, or that they stop the milkman and give their children coffee. Yet it is repeatedly pointed out—almost accusingly—that Americans are consuming four billion more pounds of meat than in 1939. Yet there are now 14 million more people in paying jobs than there were then.

The real villains in the plot apparently are the country's beef eaters. They have increased consumption of beef up from 55.6 pounds per person in 1939 to a present rate of 69 pounds. Consumers have acquired other expensive habits through record employment and wages. They are drinking more milk—many of them are even giving each child one quart a day! They are eating more eggs, vegetables and fruit. They have cut down relatively on their prewar standbys—bread, potatoes and sugar. Young men coming out of the Army, which fed its soldiers a plentiful and scientifically chosen diet, have acquired food habits that cost more than those of prewar days.

However, those days were expensive, too—in terms of national malnutrition. The draft revealed widespread physical unfitness based on poor nutrition. Bad teeth, faulty bone structure, anemia, other defects, were evidenced by those who hadn't been fed properly in childhood, owing either to parents' ignorance of nutrition or lack of money for groceries.

A PREWAR SURVEY showed 40 to 60 per cent of diets in representative areas of the United States were poor. Children with rickets and bow legs were far too common. There was widespread over-eating of sweets, a habit often resulting from diets deficient in milk and other needed food elements, and productive of an alarming amount of tooth decay. Now with the great importance nutrition is assuming in preventive medicine, it is especially necessary that present dietary standards, though still deficient, not be lowered.

Yet pocketbooks are lagging behind. Consumers' "real" income has declined in the last six months, according to the President's mid-year economic report. Many families are cutting their children's milk allotments. Consumers are finding it hard to pay 85 cents a pound for round steak that cost them 45 cents a year ago last June. Meat may be even higher next winter because of the short corn crop. White-collar family income is up to an average of $2300 yearly, but weekly pay checks soon melt that away at the grocery store. Savings bonds are being cashed to meet living expenses.

If Americans are to eat as well as the Nation's future strength requires, food must be available to them at prices they can pay. Increased production and adequate living wages are necessary for this. But the distribution system also needs looking into. When housewives buy three tomatoes in a box at the grocery store, while farmers get 50 cents a half bushel, and even let tomatoes rot in the fields; when there is appalling wastage of food every harvest season because it cannot get to those who need it; when there are too many middlemen requiring their profits and too many rumors of manipulations for scarcity, it would seem something were wrong with this country's vaunted economic efficiency.

Economic Power

In the trying months ahead, we must, if we are to safeguard our democratic economy, keep a close watch on private enterprise to see that it does not become a parasitic cluster of private collectivities. Private enterprise is not above trying to concentrate economic power to the destruction of smaller manufacturers. If such an attempt is made, we, the people, must insist on legislation to intercept it. Such atrociousness would, eventually, lead to the birth of a cartel system similar to the European. Concentrated economic power can, by its pressure on smaller manufacturers, fix prices at every level of distribution, as well as run dealers, who refuse to take orders, out of business.

Another old trick of concentrated economic power is to drive competitors out of business by unduly lowering prices. When competitors are wiped out, then prices are raised again. Therefore, for the good of the general welfare, we must closely observe the activities of private enterprise to see that it keeps its nose clean and remains free enterprise rather than become a dark shadow over our whole economic life. HARRY DANIELS, Washington.

Will Taft Join Vandenberg?

AS EVERYONE knows, Senator Robert A. Taft's presidential candidacy is about to become official. On Thursday morning, at Columbus, Ohio, Senator John W. Bricker is at last to play his grand renunciation scene. He will put aside the ambitions he could never, in any case, have satisfied, and in a state of political prose of "the man who" style, will offer his friend Taft as Ohio's favorite son. Senator Taft is to confine his immediate comment to an expression of his near silent gratification as his not very expressive features can achieve. But that evening he will become articulate, telling a large political gathering about the dubious glories of the Eightieth Congress.

Following this grand opening, Taft is to retire to the refreshings at the Columbus Hotel. Thence, in September, he will emerge restored and invigorated for a great, nationwide delegate hunt, which will not be called a delegate hunt. And in the intervals of stalking his big game, he will make speeches on important subjects, although his trip will not be called a pre-convention speech tour.

It will all be strictly in accord with the stern conventions of American presidential politics, which are as ludicrously formal, as comically unreal, as the ritual of the grand stag hunt at the court of Louis XIV. But it will have one genuinely important and significant feature.

On the West Coast, Taft is due to express himself on foreign policy. What Taft says in California will be binding upon him at the ensuing session of Congress. It will determine whether or not Taft stands with Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg on the Marshall Plan. And this in turn will determine whether the Marshall Plan is promptly passed, or becomes an issue of domestic politics. Thus it is a simple, practical fact that the position Taft takes will have the deepest bearing on the national future.

AS TAFT left Washington, he was still keeping his own counsel. Yet there were surprisingly encouraging signs of the trend of his thought. Of these signs the most important was the establishment of a much closer relationship between Taft and Vandenberg in the closing weeks of the session. In the hurly-burly before the adjournment, Vandenberg, the Senate's presiding officer, and Taft, the unofficial floor leader, could not avoid working continuously together. This brought the new development. Intimacy replaced the relationship of the past, which was that between two coordinate, acknowledged, but distant and independent powers. The problems of foreign policy also began to be genuinely discussed between them. And as a result, those close to Taft believe there is reason to hope he will fight side by side with Vandenberg when Congress meets again.

As of now, in fact, the prediction is that in California Taft will at least not commit himself against the Marshall Plan; will come out for European federation, which is a favorite scheme of his; and while making his usual obsequies to economy, will strike a generally nonisolationist note.

This, at any rate, is the hope of the entourage of rather shrewd, previously inconspicuous advisers and technicians which Taft has built up for himself. At the moment, these men are decidedly cock-a-hoop. Gov. Harold E. Stassen's remarkably ill-tempered statement, that nothing on earth would tempt him to run on the same ticket with Dewey, has dispelled the Taftian nightmare of a Dewey-Stassen alliance.

WHILE HE achieved measurable successes, Dewey also stirred up some hornets' nests on his tour; and nothing gives a politician more pleasure than a rival poking a hornet's nest. Furthermore, there is interesting substance in the theory that Gen. Douglas MacArthur may return before convention time for an imperial progress in this country, thus starting a MacArthur boom which will really be a Taft boom in disguise. This would give real life to the Taft-sponsored stop-Dewey movement.

In this last connection, however, there arises the chief factor operating against Taft's taking a wide stand on foreign policy. The great MacArthur-first-Taft-second tub thumper is Col. Robert R. McCormick. Obviously, the slightest sign that Taft is even vaguely aware of the international facts of life will drive the peculiar pride of Illinois into one of those political rages besides which the ramping of the caged tiger seem trivial. The colonel likes his candidates to think that babies are born under cabbage leaves, and he has already deprived Dewey of American citizenship and called Vandenberg a new Benedict Arnold, because they gave horrid signs of having heard about the political equivalent of the birds and flowers. Many of Taft's other supporters hold the views of McCormick.

Thus, strong influence is already being brought to bear on Taft to stand as an avowed isolationist.

These worthies, however, really do not have anywhere else to go but to Taft. And if Taft tries to please them, he may cause a national disaster in the next Congress, but he can never survive resulting embittered opposition of the more enlightened Republicans. Since he is human, this is another reason why he may make the wise choice.

The Gallup Poll

Over Half of Voters Favor Separate Peace With Japan

By George Gallup

Princeton, N. J., July 29.—Should the United States go ahead without Russia and draw up a separate peace with Japan?

Public opinion in the United States was ready to endorse such a move even before the Russians refused last week to join the proposed 11-nation Japanese peace conference.

Early in July the institute questioned American voters on the issue as follows:

"Some people say that if Russia and the United States cannot agree on peace terms for Germany and Japan, the United States should go ahead without Russia and make a separate peace with these two countries. Do you approve or disapprove of this idea?"

The vote:

Yes 56%
No 25%
No opinion 19%

In the case of Germany, a separate peace would be difficult if not impossible to draw up, since Germany is divided into occupation zones. But such difficulties are not present in the case of Japan.

The poll results mark what may be the beginning of a new trend of public thinking in this country regarding Russia.

Heretofore most Americans, although irritated by Russian actions, have wanted to keep on trying to get Russia to cooperate. That mood is still present, but apparently to a lesser extent. The majority in favor of a separate peace is substantial.

As recently as last May, the public was in a mood to keep on exhausting every effort to get Russian cooperation. Three months later, after the Marshall Plan was made public, an institute survey found a very substantial majority of American voters in favor of going ahead with the plan even if Russia refused to take part. That poll, conducted in early July, found the following:

"If Russia will not agree to the Marshall Plan, do you think the other European nations should go ahead on the plan without Russia?"

The vote among those who had heard or read about the plan was:

Yes, go ahead without Russia 82%
No 7%
No opinion 11%

In short, there is some evidence to show that American impatience with Russia may have reached the point where a majority wants to see the Nation embark on a course in foreign affairs more independent of Russia than heretofore.

The separate peace idea has wide backing from the rank and file of voters in both major political parties. Democrats favor it 2 to 1, Republicans 3 to 1, as the following table indicates.

The reaction according to amount of education is as follows:

High School 55%
Grade or no school 58%

College 35%
High School 30%

A Bomb Can't Frighten Bulgaria, Says Dimitrov

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, July 29 (U.P.).—Bulgarian Communist Premier Georgi Dimitrov told a cheering crowd in the Croatian capital of Zagreb today that only "weak brains and weak nerves" could be intimidated by the atom bomb. Dimitrov, in Yugoslavia to formulate a treaty of friendship with Marshall Tito, said, "We are not afraid of atom bombs or of threats of new aggressions and war."

Can Republican Negativism Win?

RETURNING Congressmen will now be able to take their own Gallup Poll of opinion back home. If they get the same result as Dr. Gallup it should be a severe jolt to Republican self-confidence.

The latest poll shows that 55 per cent of the Gallup cross-section prefer the Democrats to the Republicans. Even more striking, 81 per cent of those questioned would vote for President Truman over Gov. Thomas E. Dewey. Ten per cent expressed no opinion, and the outcome of a contest between the two men would probably be decided by that bloc.

How much this means one year in advance of the presidential campaign is another question. Nevertheless, the Republicans cannot laugh off the way in which their stock has dropped since last November. The tendency is always to discount the poll-taking method when the news is adverse. Yet it has proved to be a measuring rod of trends and opinions.

In three election campaigns, the psychology of the Republicans was to attack the errors of the party in power. The theme has been: Turn the rascals out.

WHILE THE Eightieth Congress can point to certain legislative achievements, this same theme song has dominated the talk and the headlines out of the first session of this Congress. Chiefly on the score of spending, the Republicans have constantly attacked the Truman Administration.

The Republican managers must now ask themselves whether this is enough. To win the support of the independent voters who decide presidential elections, a party must offer more than the Republicans have offered to date. They must offer a positive alternative to what we already have and not merely a negative attack. In the midst of a crucial contest with the Soviet Union, "economy" is not enough.

After 12 years in power, the Republicans were at a low point in 1932. Herbert Hoover was at the bottom of the pit to which the economic crisis had consigned him. It is difficult to realize, looking back on it, how deeply he was scorned by millions of Americans who blamed him for their troubles.

Yet in that campaign year, Franklin Roosevelt, a masterful politician, stumped the country with a positive program. He wasted almost no time attacking his opposition.

The Democrats will have held the executive branch of the Government for 16 years. They held both the executive and legislative branches for almost 14 years. That is a long time under our two-party system.

MILLIONS of Americans would like to see a change in the national administration. But I am more and more convinced that they will not trade something—no matter how doubtful they

Red Segregation Ordered in Germany

Berlin, July 29 (U.P.).—The Soviet high command has ordered its civilian personnel and dependents in occupied Germany to segregate themselves from the German population and move into new compounds reserved for Russians, authoritative sources said today.

No explanation was given for the order but some observers believed it was connected with Col. Gen. L. V. Kutsov's recent order warning Russians against the pitfalls of fraternization and exposure to the pitfalls of bourgeois morals.

Auto Workers to Ask Sanction For Strike of 108,000 at Ford

Detroit, July 29 (U.P.).—Richard T. Leonard, vice president of the CIO United Auto Workers, said today that UAW executive board will be asked on Saturday to sanction a strike of 108,000 Ford Motor Co. workers to back a demand for exemption provisions of the Taft-Hartley Labor Law.

Leonard disclosed yesterday that the union had injected a request for a no-penalty clause into current negotiations with Ford for a new contract. Leonard said that delegates recommended a strike deadline of August 4.

The union sought a "John L. Lewis" clause which would absolve it of legal liability for contract violations under the Taft-Hartley Law, especially in connection with wildcat strikes.

Non-striking Teller Beaten
New York, July 29 (U.P.).—A teller for the Brooklyn Trust Co., some of whose employees have been on strike since July 17, was attacked and beaten on a Brooklyn street today by two unidentified men, police said.

The teller was identified by police as William Smith, 34, a non-striker who was attacked while en route to work at a branch office of the bank at 1505 Avenue J in Brooklyn.

The strike against the Brooklyn Trust Co. and its 24 branches throughout the city was called by T. Leonard, vice president of the CIO United Auto Workers, said to be an affiliate of the CIO United Office and Professional Workers.

Four instances of violence in the strike have been reported by police, resulting in the arrest of five pickets and one bank guard on charges either of disorderly conduct or assault.

No Sign of Settlement
New York, July 29 (U.P.).—Conciliators continued today their efforts to break the stalemate prolonging the 34-day-old strike of 73,000 CIO shipworkers but there was no sign of an imminent settlement.

Representatives of the Bethlehem Steel Co., who employ the greater number of the striking members of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers, met with union officers and conciliators but neither side issued any statements from the closed meeting.

Union officials had been reported as expressing the view that a settlement was near as a result of the agreement signed yesterday with the Todd Shipyards Corp.

The Todd agreement gave the employees a 12-cent hourly wage boost and other contract improvements as compared with the 13-cent boost originally demanded by the union.

The United States has objected in vain to what it considers a discriminatory clause in a commercial treaty recently concluded between France and Argentina, diplomatic circles said yesterday.

The officials said the French and Argentine governments rejected the American objection and signed the pact last week in Paris in the presence of Mrs. Eva Peron, wife of the Argentine President.

Under this five-year agreement, Argentina will extend France $148,200,000 in credit to buy food and other supplies from the South American republic.

The United States maintained that a shipping clause in the pact would discriminate against merchant shipping from other countries.

Under the clause, France and Argentina promised to use each other's vessels exclusively in transporting goods between the two countries.

This clause is interpreted as applying not only to products purchased with the credits but to all purchases, public and private.

Officials here said Argentina turned down the American objections on the ground that the clause was necessary to rebuild her merchant marine. France told the State Department her urgent need for economic assistance made it necessary for her to accept the shipping provision.

Argentina is understood to have insisted that the clause be included in the treaty since similar provisions are contained in pacts between Argentina and other countries.

The State Department is studying the text of the France-Argentina accord to determine what further steps to take.

Bliss, just returned from a tour of American military medical installations in Germany, said German medicine, once among the finest in the world, has fallen to an almost unbelievably low estate.

U. S. Army May Have Its Doctors Treat Germans

Maj. Gen. Raymond W. Bliss, Army surgeon general, said last night there is an "extreme shortage of everything needed to care for the sick" in Germany and that United States Army doctors should help out.

Bliss, just returned from a tour of American military medical installations in Germany, said German medicine, once among the finest in the world, has fallen to an almost unbelievably low estate.

'Voice' Broadcasts to Russia Increased, Others Are Reduced

The State Department yesterday increased the time allotted to "Voice of America" programs beamed to Russia despite a 40 per cent cut in over-all broadcast time.

Assistant Secretary of State William Benton said the time reduction is one step to bring the "Voice" within the limits of the $6,900,000 appropriated by Congress for 1947-48 operations. The sum available last year was $8,400,000.

The new schedule, effective at noon, reduces broadcast time from 55 to 35 hours a day and eliminates completely native language broadcasts beamed to Sweden, Denmark and The Netherlands. It includes a new program of news and music broadcast to Russia between midnight and 12:30 a. m., Moscow time, in addition to that previously scheduled between 8 and 9 p. m., Moscow time.

Although broadcasts to the Dutch homeland were discontinued, Dutch language broadcasts to The Netherlands East Indies will be continued. Hardest hit were programs beamed to Latin-American countries, where broadcasting time was reduced from 18 hours and 15 minutes to nine hours a day.

Broadcasts to the Far East were slashed from nine hours and 45 minutes to six hours, and those to Europe from 28 hours and 30 minutes to 17 hours.

Benton said the State Department will turn over additional programming activities to private broadcasting companies as rapidly as possible.

New York Offices Continue Department offices in New York will continue, however, to prepare programs for Russia, Bulgaria, Romania, Yugoslavia, Austria, Hungary, Poland, Greece, China, Korea and occupied Germany.

Another money-saving device is that of "block programming"—the concentration of broadcasts into the best nighttime listening hours in each country.

In the past, more than one staff group was required because of the long hours involved. Programs now will be broadcast over the space of a relatively few hours, making it possible for a single staff unit to handle the entire job.

The Department plans to cut its present staff of more than 500 to about 225 when additional programming is turned over to private contractors who, it is expected, will take over many of the specialists being released by State.

3 1/2 Years' Operation by U. S. Gives Railroad $2,752,865

The Office of Defense Transportation said yesterday that the Government wound up its wartime operation of the Toledo, Peoria and Western Railroad with a cash profit of $2,752,865, which has been turned over to the line's owners.

The railroad was the first to be seized by the Government under its wartime powers, and the last released from Government operation.

Taken over by the Government March 22, 1942, the line was returned to private ownership October 1, 1945. It is a short connecting carrier bypassing the Chicago area for through freight.

It has had protracted labor difficulties since early days of World War II. Three months of violence in a walkout preceded Government action taking over the line. Immediately after it was turned to private operation, employees representing 15 brotherhoods again walked out. After a series of court actions, an injunction was issued in December, 1946, prohibiting interference with its operation.

George P. McNear, veteran president of the line, was shot and killed from ambush near his home in Peoria, Ill., March 10. The Federal Bureau of Investigation was called in on the case, which has not yet been solved.

J. Monroe Johnson, Defense Transportation Director, said that at the end of Government operation, cash on hand amounted to $6,252,865. Of this amount, $3,500,000 was turned over to the Bureau of Internal Revenue in settlement of the railroad's Federal tax liability for the years 1942 through 1946. The remaining cash, $2,752,865 went into the railroad treasury.

Dewey Attends 'Exceedingly' Harmonious Michigan Meet

Owosso, Mich., July 29 (AP)—An "exceedingly" harmonious meeting between Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York and Michigan Republican leaders was reported tonight by National GOP Committeeman Arthur E. Summerfield.

Dewey, who is campaigning for the Republican presidential nomination, met for three hours today with State GOP leaders, including Summerfield.

The latter said Dewey did not ask how Michigan's delegation would go at the 1948 national convention. The delegate situation was not discussed, Summerfield said.

Asked whether Dewey likely would be the second choice of the Michigan delegates with their 41 votes, Summerfield said:

"It would be presumptuous on our part to say how an unbossed delegation would go before the delegates are even elected."

Summerfield said Michigan's senior Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, generally regarded as the No. 1 choice of the party in the State for the presidential nomination, was "tremendously popular in this State."

He said Governor Dewey, a native of Owosso, "is very, very popular in Michigan."

Republican State Chairman John A. Wagner said sentiment among Michigan Republicans indicated Vandenberg was the favorite son and Dewey second.

Wagner told newsmen Michigan GOP leaders discussed with Dewey "national issues and national conditions and the accomplishments of Congress."

Among the subjects, he said, was taxes. He added that Dewey was "very much in favor" of tax reduction.

Summerfield said one of the chief national issues would be "restoration of a sound economy." He said this could be accomplished only with a Republican President and a Republican Congress.

Told of Summerfield's observation, Dewey said, "That sounds to me like an entirely truthful statement."

Mrs. Dudley C. Hay, secretary of the National Committee and national committeewoman from Michigan, said "We are not unimpressed of the fact that Governor Dewey is the titular head of the party."

Wagner reported that Dewey spoke "very highly" of Senator Vandenberg.

Dewey told reporters he has no plans to leave New York State after he gets home from a four-week western trip next Friday.

Board Gives Arlington Free Textbooks

Arlington County will be one of the 16 Virginia localities to take advantage of Virginia's free textbook fund this fall, the State Department of Education announced yesterday.

Last year, the General Assembly earmarked $262,500 for a free textbook fund. Eighty-five counties and 12 cities have indicated they do not desire to participate in the plan during the 1947-48 school year.

Arlington Assistant School Superintendent Charles Walsh said the county had been providing free text books for its students from local funds since 1925. He said the county had appropriated $15,500 for the books next winter.

Other benefiting localities are: Chesterfield, Elizabeth City, James City, Nelson, Norfolk and Shenandoah counties, and the cities of Richmond, Hampton, Hopewell, Newport News, Norfolk, Portsmouth, South Norfolk, Williamsburg and Winchester.

Arlington expects to receive a $10,000 appropriation, according to Walsh. He said the county had applied for the book subsidy last year with no success.

The law, approved by the Legislature without a dissenting voice, provided for the State-wide free textbook program, authorized the State Board to adopt rules and regulations for its administration, and set up a plan whereby students are required to turn in all privately owned textbooks to create an initial book pool in localities first using the plan.

Duster-Sprayer Trucks Fight Beetles for Corn Crop in Md.

By Sam Zagoria
Fast Report

Ten Montgomery County cyclone sprayer-duster trucks pounded through the tall corn fields yesterday in a last-minute attempt to save a record crop from an unprecedented invasion of Japanese beetles.

One of the vehicles was loaded with a new powder developed in the State Experimental Station laboratories at the University of Maryland. This may prove more successful than present beetle-killing powder and liquid formulas.

Chew Up Silks

County Agent O. W. Anderson joined Dr. George E. Langford, specialist in insect control for the station, in a test of the new powder on the 100-acre corn field of Remus D. Riggs in Goshen.

Anderson estimated that Riggs would lose about one barrel on every acre because of the beetles, which nestled in handfuls on the corn silks, eating them away.

The sprayer trucks drove around the edge of the corn fields, tramping down several rows of corn to make a path, and then went through the fields spraying the DDT solution and new powder in steady bursts.

Get Bush Calls

Dr. Langford and his assistants, D. W. Squires and Rufus Vincent, have been responding to rush calls for advice throughout the State. On Monday Dr. Langford was in Washington County inspecting the raspberry and corn crops now harassed by the beetles.

Other hard hit counties are Frederick, Howard and Carroll. Prince Georges and Anne Arundel have escaped major infestations, he said.

In Virginia, farm crops improved during the past week, but Japanese beetles took their toll in fruit, corn and truck gardens in the northern counties, according to the State Cooperative Crop Reporting Service. The service said beetles have appeared in larger numbers than ever before.

Two Life Termers Saw Way Out of
W. Va. State Pen

Moundsville, W. Va., July 29 (AP)—Warden M. E. Ketchum said two prisoners, both serving life sentences under the habitual criminal act, were at large today after their escape from the West Virginia State Penitentiary.

A general alarm has been sent out to all police organizations for the recapture of the two men, whom Ketchum identified as John Valyko, of Brooke County, and Stanley Sheffle, of Hancock County.

Ketchum said the men, who occupied individual adjoining cells, apparently had procured a hacksaw in some manner, and each saved his way through the bars on the window of his cell.

Their absence was discovered about 12:30 a. m. by guards making a routine check, the warden said.

New A-Bomb Tests Possible

By The Associated Press

Admiral H. P. Blandy, the Navy's top expert on atomic bombs, sat in yesterday at a secret top-level Army and Navy conference, leading to unofficial speculation he may direct some new A-bomb tests.

There was no confirmation, James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, who soon is to take the oath as the Nation's first Secretary of Defense, refused to discuss the purpose with reporters.

Secretary of War Kenneth Royall delayed a trip to Germany in order to attend. Also present was Chief Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of staff to President Truman.

Blandy, now commander in chief of the Atlantic fleet, directed two atomic bomb tests last year at Bikini atoll in the Pacific. Last Wednesday the Atomic Energy Commission announced without elaboration that it "is establishing proving grounds in the Pacific for routine experiments and tests of atomic weapons."

Presumably Blandy would at least be consulted as to the site of further tests and might again head them. He was today awarded a gold star as the equivalent of a fourth Distinguished Service Medal for his work in the Bikini operation.

The accompanying citation, read by Forrestal, said:

"Admiral (then Vice Admiral) Blandy displayed sound judgment, broad vision and initiative in organizing, planning and directing the activities of a joint Army-Navy task force during Operation Crossroads."

"Successful in completing an operation of vast scope and great importance to the future defense of the United States, he rendered distinctive service to the Navy and to his Country."

A Disbarment Action

Movie 'Lawyers' Indicted, Hanged

By Richard L. Coe

THIS ANGRY WORLD: If you've burned the toast or spilled the coffee, think how much happier you are than these irritated folk:

MISS ADLE I. SPRINGER is sore about what she calls "improper portrayal of judges and lawyers on screen, stage and radio." Miss Springer is president of the National Association of Women Lawyers and she's beefing mightily about how "untrue portrayals not only are unfair, unjust and most uncomplimentary to the legal profession, but combine to create a distrust of the judiciary and to induce a reckless disregard for law and our courts, as well as lower the prestige of the lawyers as a profession."

She objects to "the farce of the woman judge in 'The Bachelor and the Bobby Soxer,' which she'd just seen in New York." "Suddenly It's Spring" evokes her anger because it improperly shows a woman lawyer and her lawyer-husband throwing around in a night club her professional card and phone number. She dislikes the scene in "Miracle on 34th Street," which shows a judge "conjecturing the effect of his contemplated decision in a case as bearing on his reelection."

"Law," Miss Springer concludes, "is an old, noble and most indispensable profession. The film industry would better serve the public if the screen were to stress achievements of the great masters in law and their leadership in public affairs instead of hurling at lawyers and judges the darts of satirists, dramatists and comedians."

You can't very well argue with Miss Springer. If there's one thing we law-breaking Americans like to do, it's sneer at the very customs which protect us, which, unfortunately, the legal profession often makes all too easy.

As you must have noted while reading some of her remarks, Miss Springer is an alert, erudite person. All she lacks is a sense of humor.

T/SEKOT WILLIAM S. EATON, editor of Fort Belvoir's weekly newspaper, Belyor Castle, has just written a piece about critics. Says he:

"Some kids dislike spinach. Other kids detest the idea of washing behind their ears. This kid dislikes critics. To me they are a race apart, a clan banded together with the express purpose of tearing money by preying on the foibles of others."

"A critic is a fellow who can't write a play or act before a camera, but who can tell Sinclair Lewis why his plays smell and Clark Gable why his performance doesn't register (whether it does or not)."

"As a section of the literary whole, critics could most easily be dispensed with without causing the world of letters to collapse or our economy to suffer a mortal blow."

"To the public at large, the citizens who pay the bills, this making possible the publication of books and the production of plays and movies, and the daily bread of the critics who attach themselves to this most lush of gravy trains, the tart words of critics amount to almost nothing."

Eaton winds up by suggesting

Helicopter Helps Film a Western

Hollywood.—For the first time in film history a helicopter is being used in place of a camera car in filming chase sequences for RKO Radio's "Return of the Badmen."

Lobby of Allurement: Fertile Inquiry Field

By Drew Pearson

Those who have watched the inside of Washington's lobbying racket must agree that Senator Brewster of Maine has performed a useful service in bringing out the bizarre night-club parties, the Hollywood lovelies and other allurement used by airplane manufacturer Howard Hughes to cozy up to Government officials.

However, the big question is: will Brewster's probe go far enough? Repeatedly in recent years this column has called attention to this type of lobby. It has waxed flagrant and uninvestigated. Sometimes it operated through wine, women and song; sometimes through close personal friendships; sometimes through family connections.

Almost every big war contractor kept a luxurious apartment in Washington during the war, staffed with servants and plenty of liquor for the entertainment of Army officers and War Production Board officials. Most of the time these apartments were empty, thereby contributing to the Capital's housing problem. Most of the time, also, the servants were idle—which made Washington housewives, unable to get servants, furious.

There was, among other things, the yacht kept by a well-known perfume importer down the Potomac, on which John Maragon, former Kansas City bootblack and close friend of the President, entertained.

There was the swank house on S st., sometimes called the Street of the Presidents—where the power lobby threw ornate parties. There was also the very charming and personable Burdette Wright of Curtiss-Wright airplane fame, who was extremely close to Army officers and who signed many lucrative contracts before the war—later charged by Major de Seversky as setting back the Air Corps for months.

There was also the close tie be-continued. "That land is so flat, Mr. President, that I've seen as much as 640 acres completely covered with water—and yet the water would not be over an inch and a half deep at any one point."

Dams have been authorized on the Kern and King rivers, although little money has been appropriated. Elliott wants funds not only for them, but also for the Tule and Kaweah rivers.

"With all the current trouble about a shortage of oil, it seems to me almost criminal not to protect the rich oil fields near Bakersfield," Elliott said. "They're in constant danger from floods—and in the past some of the highest grade oil to be found anywhere has been lost because of the Kern River. I don't like to think of another war—but if it should come, we'd certainly not like to take any chance on having production from that field slowed down."

The President heartily agreed.

"I hope to be able to use this office," he said, "to spread flood-control protection throughout the United States generally."

Where IS That Uprising
In Caribbean?—And What?

Miami, Fla., July 29 (P).—Just thing to the report that a revolutionary army is going on in connection with tinary army was being trained in reports, some obviously wild, that Cuba.
an "invasion army" is getting ready to land in the Dominican Republic and overthrow the government of President Rafael Trujillo?
The facts are these:
1. Two Puerto Rican youths, identified as Cesar Anibal Torres and Serafin Rivera, said they had been recruited for a Dominican revolutionary army and transported from Puerto Rico to Cuba for training, but escaped, came to Miami and told their story.
2. Consul General Luis A. Oviedo of the Dominican Republic said he was convinced there was "something in the air" but that he had no public August 16.

Griswold Tells Plans; Waits
For Engineers

Athens, July 29 (P).—Dwight
Griswold, chief of the United States aid mission to Greece, said today that Greek reconstruction could get under way, at least on a small scale, before the end of August if American engineers arrive within the next few days.

Griswold, disclosing details of the program at a news conference, said that contracts of the engineering management type would be let in Washington, whereby American firms would send representatives to Greece to prepare the plans with the Greek government. The American firms, he added, then would check the local labor situation, sub-let the work to Greek contractors, and begin operations.

Roy L. Cochran, deputy chief of the mission, said there were three preliminaries to Greek reconstruction:
(1) Approval of the Greek budget, possibly on an interim basis rather than for the usual 15-month period;
(2) a preliminary, approximate distribution of funds for reconstruction;
(3) discussions with Greek government officials and final agreement on the program.

Meanwhile, an apparent cabinet rift between Premier Demetrios Maximos and Gen. Napoleon Zer-vas, minister of public order, discussing today as saying government forces had repelled a strong guerrilla attack on Amyntalon, in western Macedonia, killing 105 attackers.

The politbureau of the Greek Communist Party has issued a proclamation describing the present regime in Greece as "neo-Fascist" and charging that Griswold is an "American gaudier" sent to this country to "enforce the colonial policy of American trusts and monopolies."

Ringside Table

MAYFLOWER LOUNGE FACE-LIFTING. Carpenters and mechanics are tearing the beloved old Mayflower Lounge into little pieces. It's the preliminary operation on a drastic job of beautification
... In the meantime Dick Koons' band and those suave greeters, Teddy and Eric, have moved down the corridor to the East Room and are carrying on as usual... The lounge redecoration is expected to be completed toward the end of September, will be celebrated at a lavish "fall opening."

The Musicians' Union will hold its annual outing at Chesapeake Beach on Sunday, August 17.
Sonny Dunham's band will play for dancing. And there'll be a raffle of scrumptious prizes.

THE ACT AND THE NAME
ARE THE SAME. Johnny Ladder
at the Lotus performs on a ladder.
It's a high act even if a pun is supposed to be humor's lowest form. Johnny plays a fiddle while balancing on an unsupported ladder, later walks it around the flood light fashion. Truth is, his act is better than his joke... A new revue opens at the Lotus tomorrow.

BANDSTANDING. Clinton
Hobbes of the Nightingale recently played the zip-a-dee-daddy to his whole band. He took 'em on a picnic... Bob Knight, smooth leader at the Lounge Riviera, likes to play for style shows. He says it's fun to figure the right music to accent certain styles... A discriminating tune picker is Jimmy Nichols, maestro of the Rainbow Room. His current favorite is "Something in the Wind" by Johnny Green (who did "Body and Soul" remember?)... George

Berg and his Dubonnet Room Band have that Atlantic City look.
They're all done up in pale tan gambardines with splashy red print-ies... River Band's band leader, George Stein, is also a champ amateur chef, can tell you plenty of smart tricks in cookery. But he has one fixation we don't go along with—that capon is always better than turkey.

A restful one is Bob Ellis, star singer in the Metronome Room. Confronted with an immense frozen Daiquiri and five minutes in which to consume it, he tossed away the straws, said to the waiter, "Bring me a spoon."

MIDSUMMER PARTIES. Members of the Chinese Embassy have been giving a number of stag dinner parties in the private dining rooms of the Good Earth. Senators and Congressmen are among the guests... Representative William

With Mary Harris
G. Stratton, who introduced the bill providing homes for displaced persons, is often a member of dine-and-dance parties in the Sazerac Room of the Old New Orleans...
The Airline Traffic Association held its midsummer luncheon on Monday at the New Athens... J.
B. Hartrent, jr., president of the noncommercial Pilots' Association, often drops into Olmsted's for a steak and talkfest with brother pilots.

Flying Raid Scampers Home in Bel Air's Monckton Purse

Bennings

Dear Folks: At Bel Air. Jockey Lee Haskell, who suffered a broken leg at Havre de Grace last year, swung into action today and will ride out the meeting. Trainer Judy Johnson leaves here soon for Saratoga with her four-horse stable. The hard track continues to break down horses. Yesterday, Sea Pilot went very lame. The day before Mr. Friday suffered a broken leg and was destroyed. Trainer Bill Irvine has a brand-new apprentice jockey. He is Robert Drury, scheduled to make his debut on the Wednesday program. Kitty Kilts was scratched today. If she had been in action there probably would have been 50 claims for her. She was quoted at $1200 and certainly is even better than a $2500 filly. Henry Houchin, leading trainer at Charles Town with 20 winners, is resting his horses for the Hagerstown meeting. Jockey Woody Kirk, who rode most of the winners for the Wayne Kendrick Stable, also is marking time until next week. Monday's dead heat involving Alarosa and Dora-N-Tops was not a surprise to the Benningsites as the column picked them one-two. I see you on the rail—BILL.

Sand Rose Beaten Out By Length

By Walter Haigh
Bel Air, Md., July 29.—Mrs. Alma Stevens' Flying Raid, one of the speedsters sent here from Charles Town, had her racing legs today and won the Monckton Purse, featuring the Tuesday program. With Jockey Jimmy Baird in the saddle, the 3-year-old daughter of Sky Raider scampers into the finish line a length in advance of S. G. S. Fockler's Sand Rose. In third position in the field of nine came J. Nechamkin's Sweet Hash to be third. Flying Raid was an odds-on favorite and returned a mere $3.60 mutuel. The filly, racing with girls of her own age, was clocked in 1:00 2/5 for the five furlongs. A crowd of 6454 paid, saw the action.

Flying Raid's victory was a lucky one. But for shying from the whip in midstretch, Sand Rose probably would have been the winner. However, this filly recovered to close gamely but not before Flying Raid had zoomed to the front. Sweet Hash lacked early speed and closed gamely in the center of the track. When Sand Rose swerved she interfered with R. Noller's Knight's Hurry. This longest had to be snatched up and probably would have been in the money circle with clear sailing.

The day's steeplechase kept up the streak of winning jumping favorites. This time the crowd made the entry of J. Grabowsky's Ducker and L. H. Neller's George Corn the choice and the pair finished one-two in the order named. Veteran Jockey Norman Brown rode Ducker, the about 2 miles in 4:18 3/5. The entry paid $3.20.

The daily double paid $16.60. J. Hirsch's Chance Oak was the winner of the opening event at $5 while under the handling of Jockey Ray Arduin of Washington. The second race went to P. C. Maise's Over Gold, a $7.20 shot, with Jockey Stanley Austin aboard.

Coast Replies To Winter League Plan With 'Bah'

San Francisco, July 29 (AP).—The Pacific Coast Baseball League, which has been clamoring for major league status, wants no part of a "winter major league" on the West Coast. At least this was the opinion of Charles Graham, president and co-owner of the San Francisco Seals. Informed of the proposal made in St. Louis by J. G. Taylor Spink, publisher of The Sporting News, Graham snorted indignantly and said: "Bah! It rains in the winter on the Pacific Coast. Games could only be played possibly in San Diego or Los Angeles, and it even rains there." "The idea is too ridiculous to be even considered. "Also it would infringe on football during the whole season. "If they want a winter major league, why don't they have it back there? We don't want it. "Brick" Laws, co-owner of the Oakland A's, said he felt about the same as Graham on the matter.

Draft Law Hot Topic

American Association Head 'Sizzled' by Coast Loop Action

Columbus, Ohio, July 29 (AP)—The president of the American Association got his back up today over attempts by the Pacific Coast League to obtain freedom from the player draft and "a new classification higher than the American Association and the International League."

AA President Frank C. Lane said in a prepared statement his loop would not oppose the Pacific Coast organization seeking major league status but asserted he did not believe there was justification for the Western circuit trying to get higher minor league classification than the association.

"We also very definitely would take exception," he said, "to the Pacific Coast League not being subject to drafting of players, unless the association also is granted such a privilege."

"We are not seeking such privileges, and the association is much more concerned with continually maintaining its reputation of being the best Triple-A league in the country rather than aspiring to major league status."

The no-draft rule, Lane said, would be an injustice to players. "A restriction against the proper advancement of players commensurate with their ability would prevail if the Coast League, as a minor league, was not subject to draft regulations."

"With the draft question now being raised, I wonder if this has not been what the Pacific Coast League has been seeking all along, rather than major league status as they've publicized at nausum?"

MAURIELLO
7.5 Favorite
Brooklyn, July 29 (AP)—Gus Lesnevich, the world light heavyweight champion, and Tami Mauriello, the Bronx belter, will try to knock each other's block off tomorrow night in the name of sweet charity.

They tangle in a 10-rounder in Ebbets Field for the Damon Runyon Memorial Cancer Fund, and Promoter Andy Niederreiter, who is staging the show along with the New York Boxing Writers, figures on a gate of $125,000, with some $30,000 going to the fund. The two thumpers will slice 80 per cent of the net.

Gus and Tami tangled twice before, back in the days when Tami was just a little fellow and both times Gus outpointed Tami to retain the light heavyweight championship.

The mere fact that Tami apparently has tried to get into condition has led the local bookmakers to switch their earlier price list and install Mauriello as a 5 to 7 favorite.

AMERICAN AIRLINES

Other Area Players Out Of Tourney

Peoria, Ill., July 29 (AP)—Steady-playing Wesley Brown of Chattanooga, Tenn., and Bob Peters of Kansas City, Kan., a last-minute arrival using a set of battered clubs, today shared medal honors with two-under-par 142's in the qualifying round of the National Junior Chamber of Commerce golf tournament.

Of the Washington entrants, Bobby Worsham's 77-152 and Gene Wolfe's 83-177-160 qualified for the match play round.

Worsham blew up on the water hole ninth with a seven and found the greens very tricky in the afternoon. Wolfe was able to pull himself together and correct a bad putting streak.

Dick Sturges, 82-85-167; Stan Mouse, 83-82-165; Eddie Reigh, 81-87-168; failed to make the qualifying championship flight.

Bob Wolfe dropped out after a 46 this morning. South Carolina won the team championship with a score of 605; District of Columbia was eleventh with 644.

Peter Cate Finisher
After Brown had covered the 36-hole test over Mount Hawley's 6426-yard course with 70-72 and was ready to grab the medal, Peters—playing in the last three—of the 84-boy field—came in with an identical score for the two 18-hole rounds.

In all, 64 teen-agers with scores ranging up to 160 qualified for match play competition which starts tomorrow. Men's regulation par for the course is 36-36-72.

Brown and Peters were the only contenders to break par 144 for 36 holes, but it was equalled by two lads—Illinois State Junior Champion Jimmy Love of Peoria with 75 and a three-under-par 69, and Gene Littler of San Diego, Calif., with 71-73.

Walker P. Inman, Jr. of Augusta, Ga., was next with 70-76-146, while tied at 147 were Bill Leigh, Jr., Lakeland, Fla., who opened with a hot 69 and then faded to a closing 78, and Dick Tiddy, 240-pounder from Charlotte, N. C., who tapped 72-75.

Bob Braft of Duluth, Minn., with 74-74, and Jack Evans of Phoenix, Ariz., with 73-75, were deadlocked at 148.

Five players tied at 149, including Frank Morey, San Diego; Ed Bucklin, Everett, Wash.; Gene May, Spokane, Wash.; Bill Tatum, Columbia, S. C., and Ches McCall, Nashville, Tenn.

Defending champion Al Menger of Spokane, who won last year's inaugural meet on his home course was far behind with 75-77-152, while the 1946 runnerup, Ray Beeber, Klamath Falls, Oreg., had 81-76-157.

Comedist Peters, who arrived late and almost failed to make the last threesome, showed up with a set of dilapidated clubs which were held together by wire, string and tape. The easygoing lad made his medal bid on the final nine, bagging two birdies for a sparkling 34.

The third-seeded Falkenburg was pressed by George Pero of Coral Gables, Fla., a graduate student at the University of Miami, although the lanky Californian recovered from the loss of the first set to triumph, 4-6, 6-1, 6-0.

Larned, seeded eighth, pulled a more amazing rally in his match with 19-year-old Richard (Pancho) Gonzalez, Los Angeles.

Moylan, seeded fourth and recent winner over Frank Parker and victor at Spring Lake, had to erase a match point held by Sam Daniel, a comparative tennis unknown from Columbia, S. C., and battle to a 2-6, 7-5, 6-5, triumph.

The national intercollegiate champion from William and Mary College was within two points of being beaten by Gonzales before he started to spurt, running out five games to win the second set and taking the match, 3-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Sixth-seeded Seymour Greenberg of Chicago also won a second-round match, defeating Francis X. Shields of New York, former No. 1 player of the Nation, 6-3, 6-1, and seventh-seeded Sam Match of San Francisco entered the third bracket with a 6-1, 6-4 decision over Charles Masterson of Brooklyn.

Alexandria Police, Fire Chiefs Are Victims of 'Squeeze Play'

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Alexandria's police and fire chiefs are the victims of a successful "squeeze play" by the city council, which desired the appointment of men who would be more acceptable to them.

This is the story behind the series of "mysterious" resignations which recently have threatened to rattle the historic city's administration. It was told to The Washington Post by high-placed Alexandria officials who requested that their names be withheld.

The political maneuvering culminated last week with resignations of both Col. John S. Arnold, police chief, and James M. Duncan, Jr., fire chief. It did not, however, extend to the resignation of Col. Edwin M. Markham, assistant chief engineer, or of W. Lewis Schafer, Jr., city health officer. It was learned.

Both Arnold and Duncan have officially declared they are resigning because the City Council has not cooperated with their administrative requests and suggestions.

Present status of the two men involved in the squeeze play was cleared yesterday by City Manager Carl Budwesky, who said that he had accepted both resignations. He pointed out that the City Council has abolished Arnold's position, and the police department now automatically will be headed by Capt. Edgar Sims, who headed the department during Arnold's tour of military duty.

Budwesky said that in accordance with a recent ruling of the council, he would advertise for bids for the fire chief's job for a two-week period. This, he said, he expects to do in the "near future." Budwesky refused to comment on possible candidates for the position, although speculation so far has concerned Bernard J. Padgett, Tom Cockrell, and William Barber.

First straw in the wind on the political maneuver came last January when Colonel Arnold, newly returned from the service, asked for reinstatement in the city government.

Arnold, who had served for nine years as head of the department, was offered a job, created at that time, of license and personal property tax examiner. He first accepted the post, later refused it and was returned as chief of police.

Sims, acting police chief until Arnold's return, had a position created for him to take the city administration out of its apparent dilemma. He was made assistant chief of police.

Apparently, however, the effort to "take care of all the boys" did not produce the expected sweetness and light. Both Arnold and Duncan were told by an official in the city government a few months later that "the council wants you boys out of here."

Duncan, with a record of 23 years as chief of the fire department, had another warning. A member of the council is understood to have told him, "You're not the fair-haired boy of the city. You aren't going to get what you ask for in your department."

Most amazing thing about the resignations of the embattled chiefs was that neither knew the other was planning to resign.

Both officials emphasized this point. Said Duncan: "I didn't know Arnold was planning to resign, and if I had, I would have submitted my resignation either earlier or later."

Has Filling Station?
Duncan, who has a profitable filling station as a sideline, plans to go into the real estate and insurance business with a relative, he said. He declared that he believed he had done a pretty good job of building up the Alexandria fire-fighting resources, and that he would rather get out than have his department demoralized under him.

"I thought I had some friends on the City Council," said Duncan. "But when not a single one of them called me to discuss my resignation, or asked me to reconsider, I decided I didn't have a single friend in the council."

In explaining Arnold's "resignation" one of The Washington Post's informants stated:

"I believe him to be one of the most capable men in that type of position in the State of Virginia—but he goes mad."

The request to heads of the fire and police departments to wear uniforms, this informant believes, was the match that lit the dynamite under Arnold.

Arnold told reporters after last week's council meeting that he would resign rather than be forced to wear a uniform. He said that a uniform would have handicapped him in making several recent arrests.

Rural Electrification
Recalls 200 Employees

REA: This agency is recalling about 200 of the 325 employees it fired as of June 30. But at the same time it is reducing about 70 employees one to three grades.

In the final analysis, Rural Electrification Administration was given five millions for administration, which means a reduction of about 140 jobs from its June employment.

The 325 employees were laid off when the House cut its administrative fund to four millions.

The downgradings were ordered by the Senate. The additional million dollars was voted on the condition that REA wipe out a number of high-level positions.

OGR: Dismissal notices will go today to 126 of its 153 employees. To be abolished are the press intelligence and the public information divisions in the Office of Government Reports. To be kept are the library and the advertising and motion picture liaison. It's probable that this work will be transferred to an old-line agency.

As the office prepared to be tossed, Katherine C. Blackburn, OGR chief, and Charles W. Jackson, the advertising chief, submitted resignations.

Congress gave OGR only $230,000 for this year's operating expenses.

ODT: The Office of Defense Transportation will continue to operate—at least until next March 1. The House had originally voted its liquidation as of tomorrow.

NHA: This agency is recalling 150 of its 200 employees. The House had voted to wipe out the National Housing Agency, and all of its 200 employees were given lay-off notices. But as it turned out, NHA got $865,000 of the $1,215,000 it had requested.

However, NHA has a new name: Housing and Home Finance Agency which was created under the President's reorganization order. Its temporary head is Raymond Foley, who was chief of both NHA and Federal Housing.

The reorganization plan, incidentally, requires the President to appoint, subject to Senate confirmation, the heads of all the housing agencies under FHFA. Designated as acting are: Frank Richards at FHFA; Dillon Meyer at Public Housing, and John Fahey, chairman, Harold Lee and Earl Wallace as the three-man Home Loan Bank Board.

FPHA: And while we're on the housing subject, the Public Housing Agency is to be investigated by the House committee on Executive Expenditures. A recommendation that that committee investigate was made today by Chairman Ploeser (R., Mo.) of the Appropriations Subcommittee. He said that the agency had been "grossly mismanaged" and that it had "wasted millions of dollars."

That it has an extravagant personnel policy resulting in overstaffing and duplication of effort; that it is extremely lax in control of its travel, communications, and other expenses; and that it has "improperly used Federal funds."

POSTOFFICE: An investigation of the Postoffice Department was completed yesterday by Chairman Rees (R., Kans.) of the House Civil Service Committee. Rees said he would call in top transportation experts and the large users of the mails to advise him on what steps to take to cut down expenses and to bring about greater efficiency in the department.

COMMERCE: It has created an Office of Premium Price Plan. The office will approve the 35 millions in subsidy payments voted for exporters of lead, zinc, copper, and manganese marginal mines. W. H. McCoy is chief of the office. Commerce has transferred 31 people to the office and 35 others will be transferred to the staff.

CORRECTION: That Gold Star mother bill was approved by the Senate early Sunday morning but with an amendment which means it must go back to the House for final approval. The House was not in session when the amendment was added. Since the House approved the bill unanimously, it can be expected to okay the amendment in January and quickly send the bill to the White House. The bill would give veterans preference to widowed mothers of men who died in the military service.

COMMITTEE: That 19-man committee to determine how much economic assistance we can provide under the Marshall Plan is building up a staff. Richard Bissell, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, is its executive director. S. Morris Livingston and Kenneth Davis, Commerce economists, have been appointed secretaries to the capital goods and consumer goods subcommittees. Commerce Secretary Harriman is chairman.

TREASURY: An employee suggestion system has been set up in this department. A fund of $25,000 has been set aside to make awards of $10 to $1000 to employees for valuable suggestions. A similar committee has been set up in Commerce. The Treasury committee was made up of James H. East, Willard Johnson, John S. Timmons, Walter Freese, and B. E. Timmons.

Time Table
On District
Home Rule
ArrangedTechnical Experts
To Draft New Plan
For Submission to House in Early '48

James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.), chairman of the House District home rule subcommittee, met yesterday with Representatives Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.) and Robert E. Jones (D., Ala.) to draw up a time table leading to eventual submission to next year's Congress of a home rule charter bill.

It was decided that a staff of experts would study the problems over the summer months while Congress is adjourned. Subcommittee members are scheduled to return to Washington in December, a month before the 80th Congress convenes.

The reorganization plan drawn up by the technical staff, with the aid of subcommittee members, would then be presented to the full District Committee and submitted to Congress as soon as possible.

It was also decided yesterday that a joint meeting with the Senate District Committee would be arranged to hasten introduction of the bill.

'Assets' Grab
Challenged

London, July 29 (AP)—British Ambassador to Moscow Sir Maurice Peterson was handed a note to the Soviet government requesting that Russia consult both Britain and the United States before seizing any more "enemy assets" in Hungary, the Foreign Office announced today.

It was understood that the United States would send a similar note to Moscow.

The note said Britain wished to satisfy itself that all German and Italian assets seized by Russia in Hungary actually were enemy assets and not taken under thin legal pretenses or duress.

It said Britain could not agree to transference of all properties if part of them were owned by non-German or non-Italian nationals.

Thus, the question of defining enemy assets was raised by Britain in Hungary just as both Britain and the United States challenged the Russian definition of German assets in Austria.

Britain also asked how the Russians had taken over enemy assets in Hungary in the past and made it clear that Britain considered all seizures provisional until sanctioned by other signatories of the Hungarian and Italian treaties.

Britain asked for assurances that the Soviet government would take over liabilities as well as assets of German and Italian concerns in Hungary.

Baptists Open
In Copenhagen

Copenhagen, Denmark, July 29 (AP)—Prime Minister Knud Kristensen today welcomed 5000 delegates to the twentieth World Baptist Alliance Congress which opened at 1 p. m. in the city's biggest assembly hall, the Tennis Palace.

Dr. Theodore Adams, United States Southern Baptist leader, delivered the opening prayer under a huge banner with the legend, "Every Baptist a Missionary." Secretary General W. O. Lewis read a message from President Truman, who praised such gatherings as symbolizing "the hope of mankind for a brighter tomorrow."

Mr. Truman, brought up in the Baptist church, said: "To achieve a free and peaceful world community which all of good will earnestly desire, it is necessary that we dedicate ourselves not only to political and economic collaboration, but to spiritual cooperation as well."

Meanwhile, hundreds of Danes telephoned the Baptist housing committee offering to take Negro delegates into their homes after the Rev. Baumgard Thomsen, organizing chief, said hotel and tourist organizations indicated they did not want 200 Negro delegates in the bigger Copenhagen hotels.

Mayor H. P. Sorensen also greeted the delegates and apologized for "problems that might arise"—an apparent reference to the government's refusal to let Baptists hold services in Lutheran churches.

Employment
In Washington

A total of 23,000 persons are now seeking jobs in the District, an increase of 3000 during the past month.

These figures were reported yesterday in Labor Market News, a publication of the District office of the United States Employment Service.

At this time last year, 21,000 were seeking jobs, the publication pointed out.

Discharged workers have not swelled the job-seeking ranks as much as was expected, the USES said, since many jobless Government employees are now taking vacations on accumulated leave, have left town, or, in the case of married women, have returned to homes.

Typists and stenographers, the publication said, are appearing now on unemployment rolls in abundance for the first time since Pearl Harbor.

A marked increase of Government workers seeking reemployment is expected in 30 to 60 days.

when coal was unloaded upon it. Mrs. Pauline Kline Sullivan, owner of the beauty shop, had left the shop only a short time before the blast.

Its force scattered debris over the block, threw jewelry into the street and shattered stained glass windows in the city's beautiful Methodist church across the street and in nearby homes. It was felt in practically all sections of this peaceful Shenandoah Valley city of 10,000 persons.

An urgent call went out for all available doctors and nurses and 80 pounds of blood plasma was flown in from Richmond. The injured, many of them badly burned, taxed Memorial Hospital as ambulances continued to roll from the scene.

Firemen and police were joined by volunteer rescue workers within minutes after the blast and by nightfall, floodlights had been set up to light the ghastly wreckage. Loud speakers were set up to help control the crowds, which swelled as the night wore on and curious motorists drove from nearby communities.

Road-building equipment was moved in to move debris and knock down buckled walls.

One of the most vivid eyewitness accounts was given by Raymond Litton, 39, president of Volunteer Hose Company No. 4, who was directly across the street from the beauty shop when the blast cut loose.

"I saw a woman blown out of one of the stores, clear to the center of the street. She landed on her hands and knees and when I got to her, she said, 'There are people hurt in there—12 or 14 of them.'"

"I went into the jewelry store and some young girl was trying to talk, but the words just wouldn't come out. She started to walk, then collapsed and fell into my arms."

"We went back into the building and heard moans from under the wreckage. By that time ambulances had arrived and we loaded five persons—one of them a man—into the first two ambulances."

One of the most severely injured men was Jesse James Mul-

Board Slate

A nominating convention to select a slate of candidates for election of the Arlington County School Board next November has been set for August 7 and 9 at the Ashton Heights Women's Club, 413 N. Irving st.

Officials of a recently formed "nominating conference," which is sponsoring the unofficial convention, said yesterday that more than 35 civic organizations had expressed interest in the meeting, and had indicated they would be represented. More than 100 delegates are expected.

Originally sponsored by five county-wide organizations, the convention will select a slate of nominees for the first elective school board in county history. Election of board members was approved by county voters in a public referendum May 27 when they voted to abolish the present appointive system of selecting the board.

According to Dr. Oscar LeBeau and Edmund D. Campbell, co-chairman of the nominating conference, a majority of the civic groups in the county have approved the proposal for a central convention for selection of the school board nominees. Their slate of candidates will be presented to county officials for inclusion on the ballot in the November general election.

The convention was described by its sponsors as a "civic move designed to produce the best qualified and most logical candidates for election to the board."

Original sponsors of the convention were the Arlington Civic Federation, the Arlington Committee for School Improvement, the Better Government League, the Arlington League of Women Voters and the Organized Women Voters. All five groups actively favored an elective school board.

The five-man board to be elected next fall will take office January 1, 1948.

Negro Delegates
To Baptist Parley
Barred by Danes

Copenhagen, Denmark, July 29 (AP)—Several Copenhagen hotels and many private homes have refused to house Negro delegates to the seventh congress of the Baptist World Alliance, the Rev. Baumgard Thomsen, chairman of the congress' housing committee, said today.

The clergyman declared the hotel association let it be known a week ago that "Negroes were not wanted in Copenhagen hotels." He added that many private homes which had promised to house Baptist delegates had sent the guests back when they saw they were black.

He said that the single-engine plane crashed in Bell's lane several miles from here and burst into flames.

The men were identified as Fred Shower of Craigsville, the pilot, a World War II captain in the Air Forces who was awarded the air medal with one oak leaf cluster, and John Stump of route 1, Greenville, an employee of Showker.

The plane was owned by Richard S. Showker, a brother of the dead pilot.

Officials at the Verona airport said the plane took off early this afternoon for Harrisonburg.

An eye witness said that before it went down on farm property of W. R. Moore the motor seemed to be skipping and the pilot was trying for a landing. The ship struck two telephone poles before hitting the ground.

Hough Given
3 Years in Housing CaseArlington Builder
Convicted of Fraud
In Connection With Veterans' Homes

Stanley P. Hough, Arlington builder convicted June 24 on four counts of using the mails to defraud, was sentenced in the Federal Court in Alexandria yesterday to three years in prison. John A. K. Donovan, his attorney, told the court he would appeal.

Judge A. D. Barksdale sentenced Hough to three years on each of three counts, the terms to run concurrently, and five years probation on the fourth.

United States Attorney George R. Humrickhouse said Hough would be eligible for parole in one year, after serving one-third of his sentence.

Hough started his prison term yesterday in Alexandria's city jail. He will be transferred in a few days to the Federal penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga., designated by the Federal Bureau of Prisons.

Before sentence was passed, Hough told the court that A. L. Jewel, another Arlington builder, had agreed to finish the veterans' housing development at Oxon Hill, Md. Hough was convicted for mailing fraudulent statements about this development for which he received down payments from 27 veterans, but which he never completed.

Jewel's attorney told reporters after the sentencing that the plan had been contingent upon Hough's acting as supervisor of the job. He indicated that it probably not go through, now that Hough faces a prison term.

Sales Tax Forms
Go Out to 40,000
Merchants in Md.

More than 40,000 Maryland merchants will receive report forms this week for making the first monthly returns on the new retail sales tax, the tax division, announced yesterday in Baltimore.

The two-page form, similar to an income tax blank, must be prepared in duplicate and returned before August 15. Similar forms must be filled out by the fifteenth of each succeeding month and sent to James J. Lacey, State Comptroller, at 14 West Baltimore st., Md.

The forms contain about 25 questions and a half-page of instructions. The retailer must include his license number and a signature "by a person in authority" who attests to the truth and completeness of the report.

Buyers' Strike
Snowballs After Bridge-Club Pact

Roads, Va., July 29 (AP)—A snowballing buyers' resistance strike was reported today to be growing out of a bridge-club meeting of four Roanoke housewives.

The group agreed at their last meeting to turn thumbs down on any red meat for at least a week, buying only fish and poultry and to call five friends apiece, asking them to do likewise and to call five others.

Choice steaks were reported by most meat dealers here today to be selling at 90 cents a pound or more, and packing house branches said further increases were imminent.

The Governor earlier asked Col. Beverly Ober to discontinue the solicitation and make a report.

Ober said he was unaware solicitation had started, adding he was out of town when police stationery was provided a citizens committee directing a recruiting appeal.

State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie of Prince Georges County said yesterday that he had requested Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Glenn, Jr., parents of a 6-week-old daughter who died Sunday evening, to come to his office in Upper Marlboro on Thursday for questioning.

Meryl Glenn died in the absence of her father, 21, and mother, Jane Simon Glenn, 17, who left their home at 2501 Arundel rd., Mount Rainier, for four hours. On their return, the child was found dead in an oven-heated kitchen.

Bowie said yesterday that he had not decided what steps would be taken, and that he would wait until police had completed their investigation.

The parents said yesterday that when leaving home by automobile Sunday afternoon they forgot to turn off the kitchen oven, and that they had left the baby behind because she always became car sick.

After stopping at the Chevy Chase Club, they returned shortly after 6 p. m. to find the child dead. The temperature of her body after it had been found, according to Dr. Boyd, was 108 degrees.

Glenn, the son of Dr. Joseph B. Glenn, 2015 Q st. nw., and an Army veteran, is an accounting student at Benjamin Franklin University. The Glens were married last year.

Roman Candle
Barrage Fails
To Oust Starling

Frederick, Md., July 29 (AP)—A small-scale antiaircraft barrage of Roman candles yesterday failed to scare off squadrons of starlings which have bothered Frederick residents for many years.

Police Sgt. Benjamin Phebus and Daniel Swomley directed the red, green, and yellow balls of fire at the black-winged pests as they were bilately retiring for the night in the North Market st. sector. The birds darted off in all directions, only to return a few minutes later.

On previous attempts, the city has unsuccessfully used more conventional methods of persuasion, such as high pressure water streams, noise, and smudge pots.

Divorce Revoked
After Man's Death

Cumberland, Md., July 29 (AP)—Mary Elizabeth Riley, Baltimore, today was awarded a decree by the Allegheny County Circuit Court setting aside a divorce obtained by her husband in Mineral County, W. Va., 11 years ago.

Mrs. Riley contended she had had no knowledge of the divorce until after the death of her husband, William T. Riley, here in 1945.

In addition to setting aside the divorce as far as the State of Maryland is concerned, the court ruled that Mrs. Riley is entitled to the widow's share of her husband's estate, plus interest. This will amount to one-third of Cumberland property valued in excess of $20,000.

The decree was the result of a suit which Mrs. Riley filed against her son, Albert W. Reiley, and other relatives.

Plane's Smoke Bomb Hits Virginia Home

Norfolk, Va., July 29 (AP)—A smoke bomb dropped from a Navy plane on Monday struck a bungalow in Glenwood Park, knocking plaster from the bedroom ceiling, it was learned today.

Mrs. Kenneth J. Chesson reported she was in the kitchen of her home when the house suddenly shook. She heard plaster falling in the adjoining bedroom.

According to her husband, the bomb was dropped by a low-flying Navy plane. The missile, used in target practice, struck the side of the house at an angle. The bomb was found in the grass about two feet from the side of the house.

The Navy is investigating the accident, and has examined the damage.

During the month, however, many resorts and the better commercial hotels and motor courts continue to have reservations available.

Major Is Freed, The Jewels Were Here . . . Woman Held In Auto Deaths

Freed by its action was Marine Corps Maj. William J. McKennan, 30, of 714 North Dinwiddie st., Arlington, Va.

McKennan was the driver of the automobile that ran over Meera's prone form in the 800 block of Independence ave. sw., July 12. McKennan testified that when he saw the body in front of his car he attempted to straddle it and thought he had done so.

At a second inquest, Mrs. Frances M. Hanson, 22, of 1610 Rosedale st. ne, was ordered held for Municipal Court action under the Negligent Homicide Act in connection with the traffic death of Marshayne L. Butler, 3, of 1690 Rosedale st. ne.

The child was struck in front of 1633 Rosedale st. ne. last Friday night when she ran into the street from behind a parked car, according to police testimony.

At the time of the accident, John W. Burroughs, 28, of 5055 A st. se., told police he was driving the car that struck the Butler child. Witnesses at yesterday's inquest testified, however, that the car was operated by Mrs. Hanson. Released on $500 bond, she will be arraigned at Police Court today.

Two Pinned by Autos Held to Write About It

They were John E. Hunter, Jr., 29, 3720 W st. nw., and Raymond P. Barton, 18, 3888 Porter st. nw. Neither was seriously hurt.

According to police, the youths were standing behind Barton's car, which was parked in the 2400 block of Wisconsin ave. nw., at about 4:45 p. m., opening the trunk, when a car parked directly behind on an incline rolled against them.

John W. Hall of Bowie, Md., had parked the second car and was talking to a nearby store when its brakes slipped. Both youths were treated at Emergency Hospital and released. Hunter suffered contusions of both knees and Barton abrasions of the right leg.

Two persons were injured in an auto-streetcar crash at 8 a. m. at Independence ave. and 3d st. sw. Police said the auto was operated by Settles M. Leak, 38, 628 N. Alfred st., Alexandria.

The injured, both passengers in Leak's car, were Louis Metes, 55, 645 5th st. ne, and Bennie Andrews, 55, 712 2d st. nw. Metes was admitted to Casualty Hospital with a double fracture of the left arm. D. C. Traffic Looks Good— From the Sky Traffic Director George E. Keenip yesterday made an aerial survey of the city's morning rush-hour congestion.

This, the second in a series of flights in a Goodyear blimp to study the city's traffic problem, showed that congestion was "not bad at any point," according to Keenip.

Because of the slow speed of the blimp, made available by the Inter-Industries Safety Commission and the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., Inc., there was excellent opportunity for making a careful analysis.

The greatest congestion, which was actually considered "relatively slight," appeared at five points: Barney Circle, Dupont Circle, 15th and H sts. ne, Union Station Plaza and the intersection of Massachusetts and Wisconsin aves.

The solution to the left-turn problem at Massachusetts and Wisconsin aves, according to Keenip, may be the Arizona ave. freeway. If this fails to remove bottlenecks, he says, the only alternative will be to install a grade separation.

Drivers Skip Lanes

The most obvious cause of congestion, as seen from the air, were the "back-rabbit starts and break-jamming tactics" of many drivers, and the failure of many to stay in one lane. Many slow drivers were seen driving in middle lanes rather than on the right.

The first use of the Goodyear blimp was made two weeks ago when still pictures of 104 different points were taken. Yesterday movie pictures were made, the results to be compared annually.

Schoolmates Honor Trackman Dillard

Berea, Ohio (AP)—One of the Nation's fastest Negro hurdlers is being honored in a unique but practical way by his schoolmates. Baldwin-Wallace College here is dedicating Harrison Dillard, holder of six American hurdling championships—the national AAA high and low hurdle crowns, both outdoor and indoor, and the national collegiate high and low hurdle championships.

Some 1500 B-W students took part in the program to provide a year's tuition for Dillard's first-born child, although he is not even engaged at present. The campaign was kicked off with a "Dillard Day" at which the dean and team coach spoke.

He was a member of the board of visitors of the Medical College of Virginia and Emory and Henry College. He was president of the Lonesome Pine Country Club here, a director of the First National Bank of Appalachia and a former president of the Virginia Medical Association.

Penn State Co-eds Carefree on Diet

Pittsburgh (AP)—Bulging hips and added pounds aren't worrying the Penn State co-ed these days, observers in the college dining room report. It is the observers job to see that the girls get the kind of food they want for lunch.

Milk is in demand and a dessert isn't right without a goodly helping of whipped cream or a topping of chocolate or marshmallow. Even with those rich items the school lunches have become more balanced, the observers report.

Some guesses are that the girls are making up for wartime shortages. Others say that the new clothing styles will conceal any added bulges.

Beams of Light Used To Weigh Penicillin

Chicago (AP)—Local engineers are using beams of light to weigh the drug penicillin.

It's a neat trick to measure off .0002 of an ounce of something that costs $13,000 a pound and cap it in a bottle. They are finishing a bottle per second with an accuracy of plus or minus 1 per cent.

Electronics is the answer. The engineers use a machine that works like a chemist's balancing scale. Instead of arms, however, beams of light are used. Anything else is too heavy and throws off the accuracy.

Mrs. Spencer Dies; Former DAR Officer

Mrs. Lucella Reynolds Spencer, 76, former vice president of the National Society, Daughters of the American Revolution, died at 11 p. m. Monday at her home, 713 19th st. nw., after a three-month illness.

Mrs. Spencer, widow of Charles F. Spencer, a Nebraska banker killed in 1931 in an automobile-train accident, was one of the first women in Nebraska to seek public office, running in 1924 for the State Legislature.

At the time of her death, she was genealogical editor of the National Society, D. A. R., magazine. Her genealogical interests led, during the administration of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, to the photographing of early United States census records.

Besides the DAR, she was also active in the National Society, Daughters of Founders and Patriots, Mayflower Descendants, Federation of Women's Clubs and numerous other organizations. She was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

A native of Philadelphia, Ill., Mrs. Spencer moved to Nebraska with her parents when she was 9. As a young woman, she taught in several Nebraska country schools and for 12 years in Lexington, Neb., city schools.

She was a charter member of the Lexington, Neb., "Bonneville" Chapter of the DAR, she served as State treasurer, State vice president and State regent progressively. She is survived by two sons, Herbert L. Spencer of Washington and Charles H. Spencer of Philadelphia; a daughter, Miss Eloise E. Spencer of San Diego, Calif.; a brother, H. Bruce Reynolds of Rupert, Idaho, and two grandchildren, Mary Louise and Sally Lucille, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Spencer.

Funeral services will be held at the Presbyterian Church in Lexington, Neb., Saturday, with burial in Greenwood Cemetery there.

'Falsies' Sweep U. S. But It's Nothing New

New York (AP)—"Falsies" are highly popular with the fair sex these days, but it is not precisely a new trend.

Figures released by the Coty and Brasseur Association of America show that five million pairs of bust pads, as they are known to the trade, were sold in this country last year.

That would appear to be mass deceit on a grand scale. However, the association said, there is nothing new about them. Even as far back as 1865, fashion-wise belles were not above giving themselves a little extra help.

A squib from Mme. Demore's "Mirror of Fashion," well-known monthly of the day, said: "Mme. Demore's Spiral Spring Bust Pads: their peculiar elasticity, comfortable adaptation, great durability, lightness and perfect construction, do not fail to secure the entire approbation of those who require some artificial expansion to give rotundity to the form."

Yachtsmen Get Own 'Road Maps'

New York (AP)—A touring service for yachtsmen has been set up by the marine sales division of the Texas Co. The Texaco Waterways Service, which is dedicated to planning cruises for people, answers requests for 30,000 inquiries yearly before the war. The first postwar edition of yachting charts and maps, including guides to all principal harbors, is now being issued.

Any question, from how to tie a knot to how to sail a boat across Montana, is answered by the free service. Maps and detailed information covering all waterways in the United States and Canada, and many other parts of the world, are supplied upon request.

Bulletins to be sent out with the charts describe bridges, canal locks, depth, distances, how to take boats overland, and other necessary information.

Yes—
USED FATS Are Still

says CLEMENTINE PADDLEFORD,
Food Editor of This Week

Here's the answer to you women who are wondering if you should still save used fats! Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson, says, "Yes... your used fats are still needed, since the over-all fat supply situation is little better now than it was last year." You see, many things we use require industrial fats or their products, and there aren't enough fats in the world to go around, as yet. So every pound we women of America can save will help. So please keep up the good work until we've got this situation really licked.

Loening Objects To Long Count; It's 28th Probe

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

A STRINGENT Grover Loening, one of our topflight aviation experts, is having a wonderful time testifying. No novice at appearing before the Senate, Mr. Loening personally confirms that the current investigation is his twenty-eighth, not thirty-eighth as the press reported.

Wise in senatorial procedure, Grover had prepared written answers to questions he was sure would be asked. His answering of questions before they were asked startled Senator Ferguson.

Grover's scarcely the type to fall for Hollywood parties. Member of a conservative New York family, he's moved happily with the so-called social swim between Palm Beach and Long Island, where he and his former wife, Marks Truesdale, built one of the first really large modern houses. An aviation genius, he was one of the first to own and pilot a private flying boat, using it for business commuting between Long Island and New York.

Grover and his smart, pretty wife were divorced in the early 40s. Marks left New York to run a small town gazette near Putney, Vt., partnered with Bill Loeb, son of one of Theodore Roosevelt's secretaries. The venture wasn't too successful.

Though no announcement has been made, Marks is marrying Felix du Pont, Jr., next Saturday at the Westbury home of her parents, the Joseph Truesdales. Felix, one of the innumerable, spectacularly wealthy Wilmington clan, was first married to Ellie Hoyt, daughter of the late Manhattan banker, Richard Hoyt. He's an aviation expert, too, and moreover an intimate friend of Grover Loening. Grover is so delighted at the turn of events he claims he'd like to give the bride away!

Party-Pitching Johnny

IT'S REPORTED that Johnny Meyer, Howard Hughes' bird, bottle and beauty impresario, has been corralled in France and by tomorrow will add further zing to the Senate investigation. Pulling no punches, here's a thumbnail sketch supplied by a careful "observer" who knew Mr. M. when he was merely a hall-room boy back in Cleveland, Ohio.

Meyer, nephew of a mail carrier, went to public school. Developing early a penchant for "society," he wriggled into fancy circles by crashing debutante parties. Physically unattractive, he got around by half-fellow tactics plus a flair for giving wonderful parties. He made money in grain, attached himself to Orchestra Leader Guy Lombardo, then advanced to a higher charm bracket via movie star Errol Flynn.

He stuck by the dashing, erratic Irishman until Flynn got into trouble, then tied up with stolid citizen Henry Kaiser, who loves his publicity laid on by the shovel. Kaiser tossed Meyer to mercurial Hughes. Out in the Hollywood sticks, Meyer's seen a lot with Mike Romanoff, the Prince of Phonies.

Nighthawks Brave Newsreels

THERE WERE great doings at Andrews Field Monday night when the 617th Squadron of Lancaster bombers arrived from England. Equipped with belly tanks, they flew nonstop to Gander, Newfoundland.

This is the famous night-flying squadron which destroyed Germany's two greatest dams and, with the Ninth Squadron, helped bomb the Nazi battleship Tirpitz. The squadron was invited over by Four-Star Gen. George Kenney and will participate in the August 1 Aviation Day celebration, tour the country and, in early September, finish off with a big garden party "do" at the British Embassy.

Scarcely had the big ships settled on Andrews Field when the crews tumbled out and, in quick step to a United States Military Band, marched in review. A detachment of General Kenney's headquarters troops joined in the parade.

Group Captain Thompson, in command of the 617th, had his first encounter with the American way rehearsing several times, for the newsreels' benefit, his greeting with General Spaatz. Standing beside Spaatz was Air Chief Marshal Sir Guy Garrod, who's attached to the United Nations.

Incidentally, General Kenney, a ripely earthy character, is the man responsible for setting up the bomb line across the Pacific. In other words, his planes softened up island after island so that troops could land and pave the way to Tokyo for General MacArthur.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Girl, 16, Eldest of Five Children, Tells Her Parents It's Their Duty to Make Every Sacrifice on Her Behalf; Father Is Fed Up

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: We have five children and the eldest, 16, is our problem. The more we give her, the more she asks for—and cites what her girl friends have. She tells her father and me that we should make every sacrifice to give her what she wants; that it's our duty.

She has her father to the point of saying terrible things he doesn't mean, like the other night when she talked back and daddy said, "I wish you'd go away or die or something." I've been under a doctor's care from a major operation last year and we'll all be nervous wrecks soon.

Outside Nancy gets along fine and has many friends. We always let her have friends in, boys and girls, for parties, luncheons, etc., and we let her go out with boys if they call for her at home, although she doesn't go out with boys much. In other words, we're not too strict.

We've been paying quite a bit to keep her in school out of town, and now we've told her she will have to attend the local high school, but she balks at that. She says she just won't go to school at all. We explained that we must be fair to all the children, but she says, "I'm in high school; I should get the most."

Refuses to Help With Housework
I HAVE only $23 a week for food, clothes, etc., and out of this we've been giving her a dollar a week to spend as she pleases, and while we can't afford even that, still she wants more, although she earns money as a baby sitter, and in fact made $7 in three days recently. She dresses and goes out, without asking permission.

She doesn't want to go to bed until very late. Daddy and I go upstairs and she has to be called, every night. Then she sleeps until noon. If I ask her to get up around 9 to help me some, she says, "I am on my vacation and mothers are supposed to do the work."

We bought her everything she wanted at Christmas, even though in debt, and let her have friends in, just to please her. She was only nice during the day she got her presents, and that's the way it is all the time now. Until this problem developed we were the ideal family. How can I help her and do right by the others? C. W.

Parents Fail in Leadership
DEAR C. W.: Nancy's condition calls for bland treatment. Her insufferable attitude is largely engendered by her parents' poor leadership performance in relation to her.

You are behaving like a couple of badgered slaves, when properly you should have the reins of authority casually in hand and maintain a partnership front of imperturbable fidelity to your own judgment when passing down "higher court" decisions to her or any of your brood.

Nancy is giving you a difficult time mainly because you've slipped into the habit of giving her an undue amount of intensely emotional attention, both as concerns her social progress and her ingrate impertinence. You are acting as if she were—thus giving her to feel that she is—the pivotal character in the family since she entered high school.

Time to Get Up Off Their Faces
IT DOESN'T make sense to strain yourselves like coolie laborers to put her through adolescence on her terms,—but that's what you've been doing, thus contributing to her delusions of grandeur. Neither does it make sense to plead with her imperious demands that you can't meet, nor to heart-bleed over her wisecracking impudence.

Nancy is pretty well out of hand, and the situation might become critical if you and dad don't get up off your faces and strike a sound psychological balance in dealing with her.

As one of five children, she's not one whit more important than the other four in the family scheme of things, and it's her duty to fall in line with an equitable sharing of family resources,—just as it's your duty to uphold this principle immovably. As a long range measure, you can only help her by doing justice to the family as a whole, never letting her tantrums sway your purpose or pierce your soul.

Simplicity Makes Style, Says Gladys Jewelry Accessories Are Important

By Peggy Preston

INDIVIDUALIZED jewelry can go far in giving a woman that indefinable and cherished something known as "style." Great gobs of costume jewelry plastered without discrimination over a suit or dress detract rather than add to a well-dressed effect. But a handsome pin selected with an eye for your own personality, or a timeless, antique necklace can turn a modest frock into a beautiful gown.

With touches such as these, Gladys Swarthout, glamorous mezzo soprano of opera, stage and film, has maintained her reputation as one of America's best dressed women.

In Washington for her appearance last night with the National Symphony Orchestra at the Watergate, Miss Swarthout explained her theory about fashion in general, and jewelry in particular.

More Important

"Style is more important than fashion," declares Miss Swarthout, who has always worn her skirts at midcalf length simply because they are more becoming there than at the knee. "By style I mean, of course, clothes that suit you rather than the current modes. I choose simple, unadorned clothing because they are best for me and for my way of life. And what few jewels I have are selected with the same idea in mind."

Amethysts and rubies are her favorite stones and for settings she prefers gold over the paler metals. Most of her jewelry has been made from rare and lovely antique pieces. Each necklace, pin, clip or ring has been chosen for its wearability and adaptability, as well as for its beauty.

Russian Necklace

In her jewel case, for instance, there is an exquisite necklace from Russia which dates from the days of the Tsars. Of antique gold and diamonds, it has a large center part with clips at either end. It may be attached to a gold chain or to velvet bands which match her various costumes. A star pendant hangs from the center and may be detached to be worn as a pin on a hat or lapel.

A treasured gift from her husband, Frank Chapman, is a dainty

MISS GLADYS SWARTHOUT
... Favorite necklace of seashells

gold pin fashioned in the shape of a fan with rubies scattered over the spreading edge.

Miss Swarthout likes costume jewelry and has many pieces of this inexpensive but effective accessory. Included are plain gold loops for earrings and gold initials sewn on her belt or handbag or made into the form of a simple, tailored pin.

Six-Month Wardrobe

One of her favorite necklaces is of paper-thin sea shells in deep rose shades fading into amethyst tones. This piece was a gift from her friend Valentina, New York designer, who purchased it in Venice.

"I try to spend as little time as possible thinking about clothes," she says. "But every season I sit down with Valentina and map out what I will need for, say, a six-month period. Once that's over with I forget about clothes until the next season."

Long ago Miss Swarthout settled on a style for herself with efficiency and dispatch. She is unalarmed about today's craze for drapes and ankle-length skirts. She intends to keep right on wearing her simple, well-cut suits and dresses with a few adaptations to current modes.

"Ruffles and frills are not for me," she insists. "They make me uncomfortable."

Princess Elizabeth's Wedding Prompts Elizabethan Wardrobe

By Geraldine Hill

London, July 29 (U.P.)—Norman Hartnell, Queen Elizabeth's favorite designer, and Angele de Langhe, who dresses the beautiful Duchess of Kent, showed their autumn collections yesterday, opening a week of fashion shows by London's top 10 couturiers.

Both designers, inspired by Princess Elizabeth's forthcoming marriage to Lieut. Philip Mountbatten, dipped into seventeenth century history for ruffled sleeves. Sir Walter Raleigh capes and Elizabethan gowns as an honor to Britain's future queen.

Angele, with her eye on the headdress presumptive whose trousseau is yet to be ordered, displayed a magnificent "Elizabethan wedding gown" of white satin, patterned with hearts and with tight-fitting, ruffled, elbow-length sleeves. Set off by an Elizabethan cape, its train was a short 8 feet and could easily be transformed into a tea gown after the ceremony.

Hartnell, who stayed behind scenes to direct the showing of his 30-gown collection, parried all questions on the royal trousseau, unquestionably the design prize of the year, with "I do not know anything."

One of the most stunning dresses in his group, however, also was labeled "Elizabethan gown." It was black, quilted satin, bare shoulders were concealed under a quilted jacket with ruffled sleeves.

Hartnell, who does not think of a good figure in inches, but as "a full bust, a straight waist and good legs," accented busts and liberally sprinkled his dresses with sequins. The famous Hartnell tucks were there, too.

"Vapeurs" was a dusk-gray chiffon with bare shoulders and 11 tucks in its full skirt. Jet black sequins were splashed on a criss-cross bodice. "Cote Azur" was net sparkling with blue plastic sequins and silk to the knee. Another had a cyclamen-pink top, embroidered with jeweled cross, and a white crepe skirt.

Hartnell's collection, designed exclusively for members of British society and buyers from North and South America, used about 39 to 40 yards in each gown and, retail, would sell for about $400.

All Nations

Outstanding in Angele's collection were French, Swiss and Chinese brocades. The Chinese material had been ordered two years ago. Cleverly cut on the wrong side for an evening coat it gave a striped effect outside, a pagoda pattern inside. The coat sported old-fashioned leg o' mutton sleeves and rounded revers. In the same brocade was a tailored evening skirt.

Angele's cocktail dresses were exactly 8 1/2 inches from the ground. One of them, called "Five O'Clock," had three-quarter length sleeves bunched at the cuffs and Elizabethan puffed pockets.

Classic suits were cut from English worsted and their skirts were 1 1/2 inches longer than last autumn, the length predicted yesterday by Worth. The pockets on Angele's suits were smaller than last years.

"Coach and Horses," a tomato-colored tailored suit, had a jacket with cutaway back fitted over a pencil-slim skirt and intricate pocket detail. With it was a coach and horse-patterned silk blouse. Tweed swagger coats were fastened with sailor-and-lock storm collars. One, called "Town and Country," was camel-colored with balloon sleeves.

Mrs. Young Doesn't Miss Stage Life

By Marie McNair

"NO, I can't say I have missed it," said Lois Moran Young yesterday, speaking of the days when her name was in Broadway marquee. "I've been too busy."

The former stage, screen and radio star, who appeared in "Of Thee I Sing," its sequel, "Let 'em Eat Cake" and dozens of screen plays, started a new career when she became the wife of Col. Clarence M. Young, of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

She's been married more than a dozen years, has a son, Tim, who's almost 11. When school was out in San Francisco she brought Tim to Washington, the two of them joining Colonel Young just a month ago. From the earliest days of the war Mrs. Young has been a volunteer worker with the Red Cross. Her pets are the GIs, and it was for the boys at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco that she wrote radio shows.

Also a Speaker

WITH the title of Coordinator of all Red Cross Activities at Letterman, Lois Young also took active part in the Speakers Bureau of the San Francisco Red Cross.

The Youngs have done little commuting during the past year, as there has been too much distance between the Capital and the Coast. But now that they're together again, Mrs. Young has already joined the District Red Cross. She has just been appointed vice-chairman of the Speakers' Bureau of the Chapter Public Relations Division, and today will meet all the chairmen of the Volunteer Corps at a luncheon to be given by Mrs. David Edward Finley, chairman of Volunteer Special Services.

In the group will be Mrs. A. S. J. Atkinson, Gray Ladies; Mrs. Jesse Miller, canteen; Mrs. Orson Angell, home services; Mrs. Bruce Roberts, arts and skills; Mrs. Edward R. Now in Radio

From the footlights, Lois Moran Young, has turned to radio in the last few years.

In collaboration with Carol Levene of San Francisco she wrote and played in a 13-week series of quarter-hour radio plays sponsored by the Council of Civic Unity.

She stressed the theme for democracy and a better understanding between all peoples, and discs were distributed this spring.

GEN. DWIGHT EISENHOWER, whose "half acre" at the commandant's house, Fort Myer, flourishes with waving corn, doesn't propose to give up his garden once he moves to New York to become head of Columbia University.

He and Mrs. Eisenhower will live in the prexy's house at the university, but they're agreed on having a country house nearby.

Both General "Ike" and his Mrs. think there's nothing like the quiet of the countryside for real living. And—for the first time—they'll have their own house with a place to put all their furniture.

Forty minutes from Broadway is the limit they've put on the location of the house they'll buy. But whether it'll be Connecticut or Long Island or perhaps New Jersey, they won't know until both do some exploring.

TOWN TOPICS

THE Argentine Ambassador, Dr. Oscar Ivanissevich, who's in Detroit for a week, is spending his time making a tour of the automobile plants.

Mrs. Emil Hurja is in town for a few days, but will return to her air-cooled suite at the St. Regis tomorrow.

Marye Thomas, who has been with her father, Capt. William D. Thomas, USN, at Easthampton, Long Island, will leave the end of the week to visit her mother, Mrs. Helen Marye Thomas, at her S Bar ranch in Reno.

Silversmiths Pounding Out Patterns

Buffets Will Soon Be Bright Again

By Dorothy Carew

New York, July 29 (AP).—The chances of being able to buy a new set of silverware will be better this fall than at any time in the past five years.

It still is not possible to walk into a store and be sure of getting a desired pattern immediately, but producers are fast whittling down the backlog of orders. They expect to be pretty well caught up by the start of 1948.

Production of plated flatware is at peak levels and industry sources say American sterling output is three times what it was in 1939. For the first time since before the war silversmiths are talking of new patterns.

Oneida, Ltd., maker of Community Plate, plans to bring out a new "Morning Star" design in August to supplement its four styles now on the market.

When International Silver Co. presents a Rogers Bros. 100th anniversary plated pattern "Remembrance" in September, that design will be available not only in flatware but in holloware to match.

Scandinavian Trend

About October 20 that firm will introduce a new sterling pattern, "Northern Lights," which reflects the Scandinavian trend in design.

"At present there is a strong preference for patterns showing the Scandinavian influence," said A. L. Zeitung of International. "American designers have been very successful in turning out patterns depicting this influence, and it is my belief that trend will be felt for some time to come."

The same trend is expressed in National Silver Co.'s new sterling design, "Intermezzo," which will be in the stores soon, a company spokesman said. He added that National expects to add two new plated styles to its line in the fall.

With introduction of new patterns, silver companies also gradually are reviving old and popular patterns dropped during the war. Many extra pieces which have been practically unobtainable are being added.

Cocktail forks and table-spoons, gravy ladles, cold meat forks and a variety of other accessory pieces are appearing in increasing quantities in most of the leading sterling patterns.

And with greater availability of silverware some companies said certain patterns would be offered on an open stock basis before the end of the year.

Prices Leveling Off, Claim

Although the price of silver bullion rose from the OPA ceiling of 44½ cents an ounce to as high as 90½ cents last fall and currently is around 65 cents, Zeitung said both sterling and plated ware are selling today at prewar prices.

Silver bullion is a considerably larger factor in the cost of producing sterling than plated ware, but Zeitung said retail prices of sterling have been held down because of the greatly increased volume of sales.

Although greater selectivity is being noted with the increase of supplies, silverware makers expect annual sales to continue at a much higher level than during prewar years.

Sterling sales currently are estimated at approximately 65 million dollars a year, and Zeitung said American sterling is recognized today as the finest in the world.

New Twist Runs Pretzels Through A to Z Gamut

Philadelphia, July 29 (AP).—There's a new twist to pretzels, the bakers proclaimed today.

Alphabet shapes, the National Pretzel Bakers Institute said, are the next step in evolution of the tasty tidbit that began as an oval with a sort of "Y" inside and more recently has been marketed also as slim, straight sticks.

President Norval Postweiler of the institute admitted, with some embarrassment, that only 17 letters are available now. "We're experimenting and hope to have all 26 in production soon," he added. "Some of them are pretty difficult to make or keep intact."

"Before we're through, mothers will be using this wholesome and delicious food in baby's soup; serving pretzels—in one shape or another—at luncheons and parties, and making them as much a part of the daily food as bread itself," Postweiler said enthusiastically.

On With the New!

By Lucia Brown

Easy duty ahead for the dishwasher! The aluminum foil used to line this boiler-full of oatmeal means no scrubbing or scrubbing when clean-up time rolls around. The sticky oatmeal doesn't touch the pot, and the foil lining can be thrown away

THAT CLASSIC phrase "If only I didn't have to wash the pots and pans!" is doomed to at least partial oblivion by the new aluminum foil. This foil, made by several different companies, is used for lining pots and pans. After food is cooked in it, the foil is thrown away. Grease and food particles are discarded with the foil, leaving your kitchen utensil clean as a whistle. Manufacturers even claim the foil aids the cooking process by dispersing heat evenly and uniformly. It has 101 uses, so they say, and practically eliminates grease-clogged drains in your sink. The foil comes in rolls, just like oiled paper.

SPEEDIER COOKING and juicier meat—these are the blessings of a new "fry-broil top" now being demonstrated in Washington. Invented and patented by a Washington man, H. H. Walker, it's solid aluminum and fits into standard-sized frying pans. On its underside are half-inch prongs and on its top a sizable wooden knob. The round "broil top" rests directly on the meat as it's frying. It keeps bacon from curling, holds the moisture in frying steaks and chops, reduces shrinkage, and clips cooking time almost in half. The pronged top is also useful for tenderizing meat and for keeping it hot after it's cooked.

A BOON to big families is the new two-broiler gas range made by—of all things—a refrigerator company. This household innovation (to be introduced here in about two weeks) has a broiler beneath the oven and another at the top on the other side of the stove. Units that distribute heat more evenly are another feature of this new range. All the burner jets face inward. The heat, it's said, travels toward the center of the utensil and outward along its bottom.

Even Hair Styles Change for Fall

Whether your hair is long or short, you'll wear it over your ears this fall, according to the experts.

In the case of long hair this treatment usually means bringing the hair forward from a center back part to form a flat bun or coil that completely covers the ears. With short hair, the center back part is also featured with the hair ends forming flat curls over the ears.

These hair-dos are radically different from the familiar page-boys and upsweeps. They will look their best with the new fall hats which feature bulky crowns and side interest in brims.

If the Shoe Fits, Some Women Won't Wear It

By Ida Jean Kain

PULL UP a chair, kick off your pumps and relax, girls. This is a true story and the moral is, if the shoe pinches, don't wear it. It was 4 o'clock on a hot summer afternoon. A lady limped into a shoe store and immediately eased out of her shoes while waiting her turn. Then she requested a spectator sport, something snappy in a size 6-8.

"Are you sure that's your size?" the clerk questioned, having heard her sigh of relief as she eased off the shoes.

"Of course, I'm sure," she said, surprised, and added, "I've always worn 6-8."

"Well, we'll just check it's regulations," he explained. But his customer became a bit impatient when he not only measured the right foot, but also the left.

"Don't you think my feet are mates," she inquired.

He laughed and told her that her feet were, and assured her he had the right size in stock. He returned with four pairs, pretty ones, too. She slipped her feet into the shoes and walked around. All of them felt wonderful, so comfortable in fact that she decided to buy two pairs. Just as the clerk finished writing up the sales ticket she became suspicious and asked the size. The clerk, red in the face, explained that they were 7-B.

My goodness, you'd have thought he was trying to cheat her! She was so indignant she wasn't going to take the shoes at all.

This woman, like many others, was very proud of her small narrow foot, and of wearing a size 6-A. But just between you and me and a bunion . . . is it worth it? The answer is NO. As the clerk pointed out, nobody but the two of them knew the size, so why should she get a new wrinkle, not to mention a corn, just to squeeze into a tight shoe?

The foot specialist who passed along this story, gave a number of pointers . . .

If you are on your feet considerably, don't buy your shoes early in the day . . . feet get larger as the hours go by. This is particularly true in hot weather, when the blood comes to the surface of the foot. In fact, you might need a half size wider shoe in summer.

Don't go by the old size . . . have your feet measured, both of them. One is often slightly larger than the other. Fit the larger one, and have a pad put in the other shoe.

Teen-age girls, he stressed, should be most particular to get the right size. They don't realize the trouble they are storing up by buying shoes that fit their fancy rather than their feet.

As for general foot aid, wear stockings a half inch longer than your foot; wear a fresh pair every day; use foot powder if your feet perspire freely. There are even special soaps on the market for tender feet. Massage and splashing alternately hot and cold water on your feet stimulates circulation and makes them feel comfortable.

And for foot exercise, you can't beat walking barefoot in sand.

GM Net Soars To 147 Million In Six Months

By S. Oliver Goodman
General Motors Corp. reported last night net income of $78,572,738 for the second quarter of 1945, equivalent to $1.78 a share on common stock. This compared with a net of $16,320,573 in the same 1944 period, or 32 cents a share.

For the first six months this year net of $147,022,834 compared with a net loss of $19,004,090 in the like 1944 period.

The report pointed out that last year's figures were adversely affected by strikes and material shortages.

Net sales of GM products totaled $941,568,274 for the second quarter and $1,746,421,483 for the first six months. This compared with net sales of $747,810,192 in the second 1944 period and $1,492,260,000 in the first six months.

President Charles E. Wilson pointed out that sales of products other than motor cars were high in proportion to total sales. He cited abnormally heavy sales of service parts, household appliances, diesel engines and locomotives.

Total sales to dealers and export shipments amounted to 473,803 cars and trucks for the second quarter and 924,032 for the first half of 1945. This compared with 254,382 cars and trucks in the first half of last year.

Inventories at June 30 amounted to $715,593,385, compared with $549,352,274 at December 31, 1944, and $495,739,179 at June 30, 1944.

Failures' Total Rises
Commercial and industrial failures in the week ended July 24 rose to 76 from 63 in the preceding week and compared with 18 in the corresponding 1944 week. Dun & Bradstreet reported yesterday.

TWA Cuts Air Cargo Rates
Trans World Airline announced yesterday that effective August 1st, rates for transcontinental shipments would be reduced from the present average of 26.5 cents per ton mile to approximately 20 cents per ton mile.

Under the new rate, for example, a 100-pound shipment from Washington to Los Angeles will cost $23, as compared with the present charge of $30.86, said R. E. Whitmer, director of cargo sales.

Chicago Grain
Chicago, July 29 (P)—General liquidation hit the grain pits today as the market opened at a low level. The market finished 18 cents under the high and 18 cents under the low of the previous day.

Corn and oats showed some resistance to the selling pressure during part of the session, but were finally sold off at a loss of 1/2 cent to 1 cent, lower than the previous day's closing.

Among the factors developing the weak was the report that the Government had ordered a reduction in the export of grain to the Soviet Union, and the fact that the market was short of grain.

Wheat, on the other hand, was sold off at a loss of 1/2 cent to 1 cent, lower than the previous day's closing. The market finished 1/2 cent under the high and 1/2 cent under the low of the previous day.

Barley, on the other hand, was sold off at a loss of 1/2 cent to 1 cent, lower than the previous day's closing. The market finished 1/2 cent under the high and 1/2 cent under the low of the previous day.

Dive $1 to $3 In Heavy Sales

New York, July 29.—Stocks today suffered one of their sharpest relapses of the past several months as late heavy liquidation put the high-speed ticker tape behind for the first time since May 16 and cut down market leaders 1 or more than 3 points.

Various explanations were given for the tumble. Persistent weakness of the London market, slumping commodities and the belief of the lengthy upswing was at hand were thought to have inspired offerings from both professional and investment quarters. Dividends and earnings generally were ignored.

There were slowdowns after an active opening but, approaching

Virginia Needs
5875 More
Hospital Beds

Blacksburg, Va., July 29 (AP)—A. G. Howell, director of the State health department's bureau of hospital survey and construction, estimated today that in order to meet future needs "a total of 12,745 hospital beds will have to be available in Virginia."

"This," he said in an address before an agricultural conference held in conjunction with an institute of rural affairs, "would necessitate construction of 5275 additional general hospital beds."

Howell, in discussing the Virginia hospital survey, pointed out that he was limiting his remarks to general hospitals and said that at present there were 8334 beds being operated in 96 general hospitals in Virginia.

"These hospitals," he added, "were designed to operate 7719 general beds."

Howell said it was evident that the need for hospitals was greater in some parts of the country than others. "We also find that there is little relationship between the smaller and larger hospitals. In most instances our hospitals were built to serve a particular community. There are too many small communities without hospitals—and too many cities with overlapping services. What we need is some coordination of the hospitals we now have and the hospitals to be built in the future. There should be some working arrangement between the rural and intermediate hospitals and between these and the larger hospitals."

The Federal Hospital Survey and Construction Act will not solve entirely the problem of hospital shortage, but it is a vitally important step in the right direction. The act, he pointed out, authorizes a Federal appropriation of three million dollars to assist with construction surveys and 75 million dollars annually for the five-year period starting July 1, 1946, to assist with hospital construction. Also, $2,350,000 has been made available for the survey and planning phase of the program.

Begins Health Duties

Leonardtown, Md., July 29.—Dr. George E. Waters, new St. Marys County health officer, began his duties today. He came here from Carroll County, where he held a similar post for three years. He is a graduate of the University of Virginia and Johns Hopkins University.

Earlier this month Dr. French reported pollution conditions in the two creeks had reached a serious point, making them dangerous for swimmers.

According to the plan, eight houses on Paca Street in Annapolis now discharging sewage into College Creek, will be condemned.

County Commissioner Charles M. Russell will negotiate with five Cedar Park property holders to eliminate sewage flow into the same creek from their houses.

In order to cut down on pollution in Spa Creek, coming mainly from boats docked in it, new regulations will be set up governing sewage and garbage disposal. The Metropolitan Sewerage Commission and the Maryland Water Pollution Control Commission will designate points on sewer lines where boats can deposit sewage.

Meanwhile, means of eliminating Chesapeake Bay oil pollution will be discussed Thursday at 2:30 p. m., at the office of Capt. George E. McCabe of the Coast Guard, captain of the Port of Baltimore.

The meeting to discuss the problem is being held at the request of Governor Lane, who received many complaints from Marylanders about oil floating into bathing places in the bay.

Pony Fete Due Tomorrow at Chincoteague

Chincoteague Island, Va., July 29 (AP)—Menagerie of shaggy little species of pony, whose forebears have roamed these windswept islets for two or three centuries, will swim across Assateague Channel tomorrow morning in the preliminary event of the annual pony penning festival here Thursday.

The wild ponies belong mostly to the Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Company, which makes their penning and sale a feature of its annual festival here. A few ponies are owned by private individuals.

The question of where the ponies came from has given rise to two theories: that their ancestors swam ashore from a sinking Spanish vessel nearly three centuries ago; or that their ancestors were horses "fenced in" on the islands under a law of 1682 requiring settlers to confine their horses.

At any rate, they have been the central attraction in the firemen's carnival for 25 years, helping to raise more than $200,000. Last year $175 was paid for one of the tiny steeds.

From 8000 to 10,000 persons are expected this year. Sharing honors with the pony penning and sale will be a pony race, an air show by the Chincoteague Naval Air Station, drills by a Marine detachment, naval exhibition, trapeze act and fire fighting by naval firemen.

Shoe Prices Certain To Rise, Jarman Says

New York, July 29 (AP)—Maxey Jarman, chairman of General Shoe Corp., said today that shoe prices, forced steadily upward by skyrocketing raw material costs, are certain to go higher.

Raw material markets have gone out of control and retail prices cannot escape reflecting a part of that situation, he asserted, adding that every conceivable effort has been made to hold down the retail level.

He said shoe prices have gone up 20 per cent during 1946 in the face of an 88 per cent rise in the prices of hides and skins.

National Weather Summary

BRIEF OF U. S. WEATHER BUREAU, DEPT. OF COMMERCE, WASHINGTON—PERIOD ENDING 7:30 P. M. EST 7-29-47

24-HOUR FORECAST: Your Weatherman says, "Temperatures will be slightly higher this afternoon from Maine to Virginia and the Lakes Region." He adds, "It will feel rather comfortable since northerly winds will bring low humidity and little cloudiness with highest temperatures in the 80s." The Northwest will record similar readings as cool air pushes down from the Canadian coast.

Considerable sunshine and a warm, moist air stream from the Gulf of Mexico will produce hot, sticky weather from the Gulf State to the southern and central Rockies, the southern and central Plains and the lower Ohio and Mississippi Valleys. Afternoon readings will be in the middle and upper 90s in this area. The mercury is expected to soar above 100 degrees as the sun pours on its heat in Texas, Oklahoma and the Southwest Desert Region.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms will occur from towering clouds along the Gulf Coast, through the Rockies and in the lake sections of Michigan and Ohio. Warm, moist air from the Gulf of Mexico will build up into billowing thunderheads and release thunderstorms from South Carolina and Florida to Texas. Storms shown through the Rockies will occur as air from the Gulf of Mexico is lifted while flowing over the mountains.

Forecasters are calling for sunny weather for most of the United States today. Partial cloudiness is indicated for the Lakes Region and the Gulf States while southern Florida will be overcast. (See inset map.)

Today's maximum temperatures will range from 109 degrees at Phoenix, Ariz., to 67 at Oakland, Calif. Portraits

By James J. Metcalfe

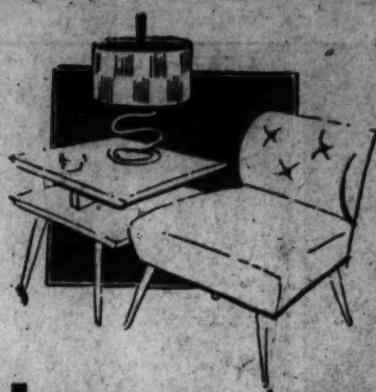

No one but you

I know I could have had you once . . . A long, long time ago . . . And once upon a time, my dear . . . I said I loved you so . . . But I was very foolish then . . . And I was very blind . . . Because I did not know my heart . . . Was echoing my mind . . . I did not ever understand . . . How much you meant to me . . . Until the years went by and you . . . Became a memory . . . Until there were no hours left . . . To linger and to wait . . . And in the last analysis . . . I knew it was too late . . . But if I live forever, dear . . . I know this much is true . . . There never was and never will . . . Be anyone but you.

Famous Innerspring Mattress

Only during our Half-Yearly can you get it for 28.88! The luxury mattress with 220 spine-pampering coils to the double size. A proportionately high number to the single size. One of America's topflight manufacturers made it. He cushioned every last coil in fluffy layers of cotton felt and padding. Put on a pre-built border to prevent sagging. Covered it in Government standard ACA ticking. Weltd the sides for lasting trimness and firmness. Button-tufted the top. Added handles. The result—a dream of a mattress for sweet deep sleep. Twin and double sizes. Matching Box Spring . . . 28.88.
